A.
Brown

"And Gladly Wolde He Lerne And Gladly Teche"

The 1949 HOWLER is dedicated to Professor Dalma A. Brown, in recognition of his quiet eminence as man and scholar. He has endeared himself to those who know him by his unaffectedness, conscientiousness and modesty. More than anything else, however, one is impressed with his ability as a teacher and his complete devotion to his students.

Professor Brown has expressed these qualities not only in the countless hours he has given to his work with college students, but also in his concern and anxiety for their welfare and progress. Often you will find him late at night in his office in the Alumni Building, grading stacks of papers or revising his carefully prepared notes in the light of new discoveries in his field. And he has literally worried himself sick in his efforts to serve his students more effectively as teacher and counselor.

He is constantly asking, "How could I have presented this subject more clearly?" or, "Was this examination fair to the students?" or, "Am I pointing out the really essential things in this course in such a way that everyone can understand them?"

Many students will remember him for his interpretations of eighteenth century English literature, as he unravels the trends of this complex period and brings its figures to life. Others will remember his patient explanations of the intricacies of English grammar, and his survey courses in English and American literature. In the classroom and out he is humble, sincere, eager to help, and honestly interested in his students.

But his activities are by no means limited to the school curriculum. He has served capably as faculty adviser to The Student, offering many helpful suggestions to staff members of the magazine. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and currently is president of the Humanities Club, a scholarly organization composed of professors who teach courses in the humanities. He is also a family man, very devoted to his wife and their two children.

Professor Brown's personality, like his appearance, is not pretentious or formidable. His worth creeps up on you, like the hidden value of a good book, or a philosophical truth. You come to realize that through the years he has built up an imposing edifice of accomplishment—an edifice of more intrinsic merit than the flashy impact of a more spectacular individual. His simple dignity and his great love of books, learning and teaching remind one of Chaucer's Clerk of Oxford. Indeed, it would almost seem that Chaucer was speaking of Professor Brown when he uttered the eloquent tribute,

"And gladly wolde he lerne and gladly teche."

DEDICATION

Foreword

THIS, your 1949 Howler, is the record in words and pictures of a school year at Wake Forest College. That is its purpose and its theme. It is a contemporary record, one which will have been completed just as you read these words for the first time. And it is a permanent record, one which will take on added significance as the years go by.

Here you will find recorded the patterns which form our 1948-1949 school year—names and faces, organizations and activities, aspirations and achievements. It is as though the complex mosaic of these patterns had been hewn in granite by a hand which has just added the last touch to an inscription that will perpetuate them forever.

You, as a Wake Forest student, helped form these patterns which we have tried to record. Whether your contribution was great or small, it was a vital contribution, for it was unique, and could not have been made by anyone but you. Without you the story which we tell would be a different one. So this is your story—the record of yourself and those who joined with you to create the living drama of a year in the life of your college.

You will always remember this drama, especially those of you for whom this is the last year of college life. But your memories, no matter how vivid today, will grow dim with the passing years. We who have produced this record hope that it will help you to keep them alive and distinct. We hope that in time it will become for you the key to a storhouse of half-forgotten impressions, with power to release them as a flood of nostalgic reminiscences.

Basically, this record, like any other, is composed of facts. We have taken as its ingredients a diverse assortment of facts about people you know and the things they did. We hope that they have been combined here and thrown into a true perspective which will enable you to see and remember them always as a unified whole.

These facts seem to fall naturally into five major classifications. The first of these is labeled simply "The College." Here you will find the story of the administration, faculty and students of both the liberal arts school and the law school.

Another group of facts concerns campus organizations—honorary fraternities, student government, religious organizations, publications, and organizations devoted to forensics, dramatics and music. A third group covers athletics, including football, basketball, baseball, minor sports and intramurals.

A division entitled "Social Life" tells of social fraternities, social activities and the May Court, and the final group of facts, labeled "Highlights," consists of accounts of the major events of the year.

These five major classifications are broken up into smaller sections, each of which includes not only the usual information, but also some of the oft-neglected details connected with the people and things described in that section. Thus you will see in this book the hobbies of professors, a student council case, a day in the life of a typical student, and other similar sidelights, presented as informal picture stories at the end of each of the various sections.

All these facts, big and small, have gone into the making of this yearbook. They are here for you to see. And, if you look closer, you will see also the spirit which lies beneath them. It is our hope that this book will enable you to retain more vividly this true spirit of Wake Forest as you experienced it in the year which has just ended. That, more than anything else, is the goal of The 1949 HOWLER.

THE COLLEGE

BOOK ONE

THE COLLEGE

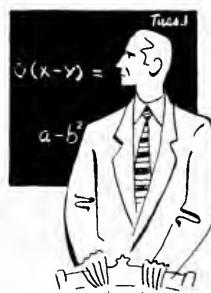

What is Wake Forest College? Maybe it is fifteen buildings, and twenty-four acres of ground, and over a mile of brick walks. Maybe it is ninety-seven professors, and fifty administrative workers. Maybe it is 1,898 students, from thirty-three states and from such far-away places as Alaska, Brazil and Trinidad. Maybe it is thirteen students named Davis, and seventeen named Williams, and twenty named Johnson, and hundreds of others named everything from Abernethy to Zrakas.

Maybe it is classes in art and aquatics, band and banking, calculus and counterpoint, epistemology and electronics, physics and foreign trade, government and genetics, Milton and Molière, play production and Plato, Xenophon and Zoology.

Or maybe it is a cheery "Hello" from a student you never saw before, or from Dean Bryan or President Kitchin. Maybe it is yelling yourself hoarse at football games and pep rallies, or pausing with your fellow students for twilight vespers. Maybe it is staying up late nights to learn organic chemistry, or to discuss the problems of life—"I'll mention a spade," . . . "but that third question, the one on Alexander Pope," . . . "and then she gives me this stuff about having to wash her hair."

Wake Forest College may be all these things, but it is also something more. It is you, and a living spirit which you help keep alive. Those who are really a part of Wake Forest can feel this spirit. It is tangible and real—more real than any amount of buildings, or people, or courses of study. Ask an old grad, he'll tell you. Much that is now Wake Forest will change or disappear, as you will see for yourself if you come back to visit in future years. But the Wake Forest spirit will never die.

This first book of the 1949 HOWLER is a record of the people who were a part of the Wake Forest spirit in 1948 and 1949, and of some of the things they did. Here you will meet the administration and faculty, who constitute the more stationary part of the college, and the students, who gave it the individuality which made it what it was this year.

The first section gives a picture of administration officials and assistants and the duties they perform, and a glimpse at some of President Kitchin's daily activities. The faculty section is split up into academic departments. There is a brief presentation of the work of each department, and then a quick look at the personal activities of some of the professors.

The next section presents classes, outstanding seniors and typical classroom scenes. Book One ends with the story of the law school, including legal fraternities, the Bar Association, and a typical moot court session.

Administration

THURMAN D. KITCHIN, M.D., L.L.D., F.A.C.P.
President

Grouped around the rotunda of Wait Hall are the offices of administration—the nerve-center of our college. Here the school's policies and supervisory activities are executed and, in a large measure, planned and formulated.

The task of directing and co-ordinating the administrative machinery falls on Dr. Thurman D. Kitchin, President of the College. Dr. Kitchin performs this job with a calmness and efficiency which give no indication of the enormity of his responsibilities. In addition to carrying out his directorial duties, he serves as a vital link between the college and the outside world. Much of his work involves contact with alumni and with others who have business with the college.

Dr. D. B. Bryan, Dean of the college, acts as the main link between the administration and the college students. He is both right-hand-man to Dr. Kitchin and sympathetic counselor to the students. Miss Lois Johnson, Dean of Women, handles the problems of the co-eds with wisdom and understanding.

Problems of finance, which have become increasingly acute with the rising cost of living, are the immediate concern of Bursar Elliott B. Earnshaw. And Registrar Grady S. Patterson keeps the many academic records which are essential to the operation of the college.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES

The Board of Trustees is the policy-making body of the college. Composed of thirty-eight men, it meets four times a year.

Much of the Board's work is done through committees. The most important of these is the ten-man executive committee, which meets once a month. New committees have been formed this year to handle college and church relations, issuance of diplomas, faculty-student relations, curriculum changes, public relations, and faculty nominations and promotions.

A significant move of the Board this year was the authorization of a "major gifts" program designed to raise approximately nine million dollars for the Enlargement Campaign.

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICERS

WORTH H. COPELAND, M.A.
Assistant Bursar and Assistant Secretary

These are the special officers of the administration. They lighten the tasks of the five major officials and fill positions which require knowledge and skills of a special nature.

Mr. Copeland has taken over some of the vastly increased duties of the Bursar. Dr. Blackburn fills the double role of college chaplain and pastor of the local Baptist church. Dr. Olive keeps track of alumni and publishes the Alumni News. Mr. West and Dr. Mackie supervise the activities of the library and the infirmary, respectively, while Mr. Memory helps graduates find suitable jobs.

Mr. Snyder operates the College Book Store, where students go for books, breakfasts of chocolate shakes and cookies, or a hand or so of bridge. Mrs. O'Brian and "Ma" Overby, housemothers in the girls' dormitories, take a personal interest in the problems and welfare of the co-eds. The library and infirmary staffs minister efficiently to the mental and physical needs of the student body.

ADMINISTRATIVE ASSISTANTS

The immediate tasks of many administration officials are so great that they would be tied up constantly by a mass of details were it not for the aid of the people who are pictured on this page. These people are hardly ever in the limelight. They receive far less credit for their service than they deserve.

Mrs. Pritchard, a kindly lady with an impish twinkle in her eye, handles the numerous secretarial details connected with Dr. Kirchin's duties. Miss Godfrey fills the same position for Dean Bryan. Mrs. Pledger relieves Athletic Director Jim Weaver of such tasks as filling orders for football tickets. Mrs. Peña assists Tom Bost in the News Bureau and writes many of the bureau's press releases. Mrs. Thomas is Dr. Blackburn's efficient secretary.

Mr. Cook has charge of all relations between the bursar's office and veteran students, and Miss Teachey assists Miss Johnson in the Women's Administration. The staffs of the public relations office, the bursar's office and the registrar's office maintain veritable mountains of records and take care of a profusion of office work details.

Dr. Kitchin at Work

Dr. Kitchin works hard. Often, his duties take him away for conferences or speeches. But ordinarily you will find him in his office in Wait Hall, handling the everyday tasks required of him as chief executive of the college.

He usually walks to work around eight-thirty in the morning from his home near the campus. Always, he has a friendly greeting for all those he meets during the day, whether they work with him, have business with him, or just pass the time of day.

Dr. Kitchin leaves his home at eight-thirty A.M.
Weather permitting, he always walks to work.

He leaves Dean Bryan's office after discussing a problem with the Dean. On the left is Dr. Bryan.

Seated at his desk, he dictates a reply to the letter in his hand to Mrs. Pritchard, his secretary.

"I find my work very engaging. I have watched this college grow from a small school of six hundred or so to what it is today, and I have always been proud to be here."

"It was a pretty hard pull during the war years, when so many students and professors were called into service. But I guess other colleges had to face the same problem."

"You know, this opportunity to move to Winston-Salem is a place to be one of the best things that ever happened to Wake Forest. We can't afford to turn it down."

"Yes, there are many who oppose the move. It isn't easy to raise all the money we must have, but I am sure we can do it. The campaign seems to be going very well."

"With the new plant at
Winston-Salem, Wake Forest will have a greater opportunity for service. It is our duty to take advantage of that opportunity."

The School of Religion, with 1,005 students, offered this year twenty-eight courses designed to introduce all students to religious literature and thought and to give students preparing for specialized religious service the foundational courses needed for effective work. Several courses were offered for the first time, including a course in rural church administration and a course in radio techniques. Dr. Griffin, Mr. Hendricks and Mr. Morrissey were new additions to the faculty. Another faculty member, Dr. Lovelace, completed a project begun in 1946 of painting two large wall maps for use in Bible courses. His map of Palestine measures about ten by twelve feet, and his map of the Biblical World is nine feet high and eighteen feet long.

The nine members of the History-Government Department offered to the 1,124 students enrolled in the department this year courses which cover the range of human accomplishment from the period of Mesopotamian Civilization to World War II and the postwar era. There were also courses which analyze the salient features of local, state and national government. Added to the department this year were Mr. Jones, Mr. Connelly, Mr. Hawkins, and Dr. Pearson's new Chevrolet.

SOCIOLOGY

In this, its second year as a separate division, the Sociology Department added new courses in social research and race and culture, thus completing a curriculum of basic studies for a major in the field. In order to correlate this curriculum more closely with the needs of students, the department conducted a survey determining the types of social careers planned by the forty-two Sociology majors and minors.

ALBERT C. REID, M.A., Ph.D.

PHILOSOPHY AND PSYCHOLOGY

The Philosophy and Psychology Department enrolled almost 500 students this year, the largest number in the history of the department. Mr. John W. Chandler joined the faculty, and three new courses were offered. The Psychology Department, in co-operation with the Department of Sociology, participated in a nationwide survey of drinking habits and attitudes of American college students, conducted by Yale University. Dr. Reid published Resources for Worship, a book containing fifty brief, pointed scripture interpretations designed to meet the practical needs of daily living. A philosophy club was organized by students majoring in that field.

Director of Music

MUSIC

The Music Department offered this year twenty-three courses in six fields: music theory, history of music and musicology, church and choral music, music education, ensemble, and private instruction. A class for public school music teachers was taught for the first time. The band, orchestra, glee club and A Cappella Choir were very active. The choir made several state-wide tours, and the band played at seven football games, including the Dixie Bowl game at Birmingham. Several members of the orchestra took part in the Raleigh Opera production of "Carmen." But the department's greatest achievement was the production of a record album of Wake Forest songs.

GERMAN

The addition of courses where scientific terms and significant German scientists are discussed has given the Department of German a balanced program which stresses not only the cultural value of the language but also its practical benefit in preparing students for a career in science. To these ends the department has offered courses in scientific German, in German grammar, and in German literature. Phonograph records were used for several classes, and interested students were given an opportunity to listen to radio broadcasts in the German language. These broadcasts, which were picked up on a shortwave receiver, were beamed to Germany and then rebroadcast from Berlin by the Voice of America.

GREEK LANGUAGE AND LIT- ERATURE

CRONJE B. EARP, M.A., Ph.D.
Professor

Approximately 150 students, most of whom were majoring or minoring in Greek, were enrolled for courses in the Department of Greek Language and Literature during each semester of this year. Courses in Greek civilization and literature, which do not require a knowledge of the Greek language, were especially popular with the students. These and other Greek classes met this year in the religion building.

LATIN LANGUAGE AND LITERATURE

Dr. Hubert M. Potcat, now vice-president of the American Classical League, published this year a new translation of four of Cicero's philosophical essays, one volume in a series entitled "Ancient and Modern Philosophy." He again lectured to his traditionally crowded Latin classes. With only two men in the department, it is remarkable to note that more than 300 students were enrolled in Latin courses at Wake Forest this year.

ROMANCE LANGUAGES

The 800 students enrolled in the Department of Romance Languages this year were brought into closer contact with the spoken language through the use of Kodachrome slides from foreign countries, radio broadcasts and phonograph records. A full length Spanish-dialogue film, Doña Barbara, was shown in one of the local theaters through the efforts of Professor M. E. Delgado, new director of the Spanish division of the department.

In all, the department offered twenty-five courses in various phases of biology to more than 800 students.

MATHEMATICS

More students have shown interest in mathematics as a major or a minor this year than ever before, and enrollment has increased greatly, particularly in the upper-bracket courses. Part of this interest may have been aroused by the newly organized Mathematics Club. In addition to theory courses in algebra, trigonometry, geometry, calculus, differential equations and other phases of mathematics, the department offered engineering courses in such subjects as mechanical drawing, surveying and astronomy.

PHYSICS

Activity this year in the Physics Department was highlighted by a "fair," presented by the Physics Club, which consisted of exhibitions and demonstrations illustrating various physical concepts and phenomena. The sixteen courses offered by the department covered such topics as electricity and magnetism, electronics, atomic physics, heat, light and optics and radio. Dr. Parker, working during the summer under a Carnegie grant, began research work in nuclear physics at the University of California.

EDUCATION

This year the Department of Education expanded its practice teaching program and added two thousand dollars worth of audio-visual equipment. 132 students who completed their courses of study were certified to teach. The department not only trained these students to teach but also assisted them in securing positions in public school work. The latter service was made available through the facilities of the Placement Bureau, of which Professor Memory is director.

Professors Are People Too

Dr. Ora C. Bradbury varnishes a table which he himself has made in his home furniture workshop.

Some of us tend to think of our professors merely as taskmasters or sources of knowledge, or, at best, as guides and counselors. Actually, they are people, too, just like the rest of us.

It is true that they spend much time with students, both in the classroom and out, but they also have homes, and families, and hobbies, and personal activities of their own. It is strange how seldom we as students seem to recognize this obvious reality.

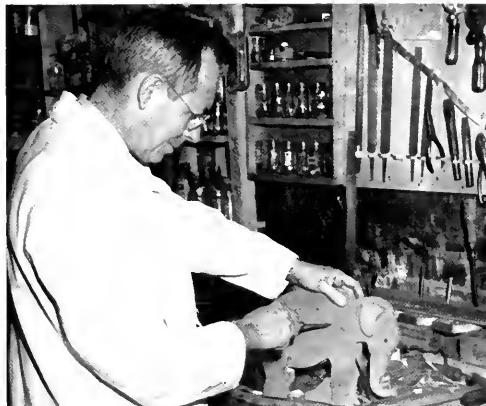

Here you see several professors engaging in the "off duty" activities to which they turn for relief from the strain of daily work.

Dr. John W. Nowell adjusts the frequency on his powerful short-wave radio receiving apparatus.

Prof. Roland S. Gay puts the finishing touch on a toy elephant which he has made for his daughter.

Dr. Charles S. Black focuses the enlarger which he uses to print photographs in his own darkroom.

The senior class is, once again, the largest graduating class in the history of our College. Three hundred ninety-seven students were graduated in May alone. The competition offered by so large a group put such pressure on all students that the percentage of honor graduates is the greatest in decades.

A heterogeneous group at first, the class has been bound together by four years of common experience. Its members have distinguished themselves in all fields of college activity. Fifteen seniors were members of ODK, and twenty-six made Phi Beta Kappa.

Henry Huff was a leading debater. Tom Fetzer, John O'Quinn, Harry Dowda, Joe Fulghum and Willard Kaylor were leading athletes. Seniors edited and managed the student publications. Tillie Roberts, Bob Phelps and George Mallonee were instrumental in presenting such dramas as Ghosts and Othello. Bob Orr and Edith Allen were notable in the music field. Bob Winecoff, P. A. Cline, Bea Herring and others were leaders in religious activity.

Thus the class of '49 has left its mark upon our College. For some of the events which have helped determine the influence of the College on the class, see the captions on the following pages.

GRADUATE STUDENTS

The two students pictured below have been working this year toward Master's degrees. They became candidates for the Master's degree after the heads of the departments in which they are studying recommended them on the basis of superior work in undergraduate school and apparent initiative and capacity to do graduate work. In addition to taking a preliminary examination early in their course of study and a comprehensive examination toward the close, they were required to write a thesis based on original research.

This year, for the first time, Juniors were elected to Phi Beta Kappa. Gaining this high honor were Sheldon Bass, Pete Caudle, John Ledbetter, Herb Paschal, Vivian Snuggs, and Rom Weatherman. Bill Bethune, Pete Caudle, Johnny Dillon and Bill Hensley were elected to ODK.

Caudle was also prominent in student government, along with Bob Drake, John Gibson and O. K. Whittington. Bess Abolita, Jewell Adams, Vivian Snuggs and Shirley Upchurch were leaders in women's government.

Junior football stars included Carroll Blackerby, Ed Bradley and Jim Duncan, and Jim Patton did well in basketball. Russ Batchelor, Paul Livick, Vern Mustian, Gene Hooks, Moe Bauer and Charlie Teague were baseball standouts.

In publications, Bill Bethune and Herb Paschal were leading editorialists for Old Gold and Black, and Bill Hensley and Johnny Dillon were sports staffers for all three publications. Ed Friedenberg was assistant HOWLER editor, Bob Sherrill a Student cartoonist and Alex Kizer a HOWLER photographer.

Paced by these students, the Juniors look to an even greater year in 1950.

Sophomores rendered particularly outstanding services this year in the field of athletics. The list of sophomore athletes was headed by Bill George, Bill Gregus and Lou Pollacci, with their much-publicized football exploits. George also was our entire wrestling team, and served as our sole representative to the conference wrestling tournament.

Jack Mueller and Stan Najeway starred on the basketball court. Mueller's tricky ball handling and fancy dribbling gained him state-wide recognition. Letterman Charlie Kersh, Harry Nicholas, Kent Rogers, Dick Vander Clute and Wiley Warren made up a large part of the baseball team.

Bob Crouch and Bland Lewis were outstanding in student government, and Crouch was also active in debate. Cree Deane did notable work in dramatics.

In publications sophomores had illustrators J. Brubaker, Betty Isbell and Jan Young; writers Dave Clark, Jewell Livingstone and Carol Oldham; and such production men as Bob Hester and Jack Bullard.

Thus the sophomores, leaning on last year's experience, took an increasingly active part this year in campus activities.

The freshmen attracted great attention soon after their arrival through their excellent football team, which gathered many followers. Then the campus was deluged with posters and candy kisses distributed by the 33 candidates for four class offices. Sara Page Jackson and Jo Kimsey gained note as majorettes, Wade Gallant as choir accompanist and Erma Lanier in publications, as freshmen began to take active part in all phases of college activity.

Classroom Activity

Phyllis Tate, Roger Jackson and George Rouse do chemistry experiment.

Professor Clonts calls the roll in his English history class.

Our classes range in size from upper division seminars with only two or three students to science lectures with nearly a hundred. They range in nature from pre-collegiate geometry to advanced calculus, from Chaucer to modern dance, from elementary typing to the philosophy of religion. They vary not only in size and subject matter but also in the type of activity which they carry on. Pictured here are some of the many different classroom activities at Wake Forest College.

Students draw blueprints in "Pop" Carroll's class, Grace McIlveen gives a short talk in speech class, Professor McDonald directs a rehearsal of the band, Professor Barrow demonstrates basketball technique.

Law School

ROBERT E. LEE, M.A., LL.B., LLM., S.J.D.
Dem

This year the Law School of Wake Forest College had six faculty members and more than 175 students. Occupying the entire second floor of the Fleck-Williams Library Building, it housed a library containing 17,000 carefully chosen volumes.

Entrance requirements were raised early in 1949, in accordance with a policy of taking mature men and women with a cultural background against which legal problems can be seen in their social, economic and moral aspects as well as in their purely legal setting.

The school concentrated on training students for legal practice in this state, but the thirty-nine courses which were offered were designed to fit students for practice elsewhere as well.

The faculty stressed the practical side of legal practice as well as legal precepts, and also gave careful attention to the development in students of reasoning powers, ability to present legal arguments, and a strong sense of professional ethics.

The eight members of the Law School administration and faculty operate as a close-knit and well-coordinated group, under the able direction of Dean Lee. The quality of their instruction was dramatically proved this year by the fact that no graduate of the school failed to pass the State Bar Examination either of North Carolina or of any other state where members of the graduating class entered practice.

These eight men and women created in the school an atmosphere of friendliness and comradeship both among themselves and with the students. They gathered every afternoon for a faculty tea, where they discussed the events and problems of the day in a spirit of pleasant informality. They spent many hours, both in class and out, giving advice to students on difficult legal points, and they cooperated whole-heartedly with students in planning and carrying out moot court sessions.

Worthy of special mention is Professor Timberlake, who for forty-two years has been giving of his great legal knowledge and rich human experience to more than fifteen hundred North Carolina lawyers who have sat in his classes.

POST-GRADUATE LAW

The Law School's only post-graduate student, Ben N. Cole, received his LL.B. degree here in August, 1948, and passed the North Carolina State Bar Examination the same month. He took additional courses in order to prepare himself for a commission in the Judge Advocate General's Department of the U. S. Navy.

The class of 1949 is the first full post-war class to graduate from Wake Forest Law School since the re-establishment of the school on the campus in 1946. The men, largely war veterans, entered either in the summer or fall of that year or the spring of 1947.

This class is the largest class ever to graduate from the law school. In its three years the class has elected as presidents Horace Kornegay, Richard Williams and Warren Coble. Henry Huff has served as vice-president for three years, and Frank Howard, Guy Cox and Gene Cole have filled the office of secretary.

James F. Justice heads a long list of legal scholars, followed by Ray Swain, Thomas Muse and Kenneth Hite. These men have distinguished themselves by maintaining during their three years a very high average of scholastic achievement.

Horace Kornegay, Richard Williams, Warren Coble and Henry Huff are members of Omicron Delta Kappa, with Huff serving this year as president of the organization. Class members who have been chosen for Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges are Horace Kornegay, Glenn Brown and Henry Huff. Thomas Johnston is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

SECOND YEAR LAW CLASS

Most of the members of this class began the study of law in 1947. As a first-year class this group inaugurated the practice of holding a "get acquainted" banquet. Then they settled into the routine of law school: briefing cases, attending class and reciting.

Members of the class have figured prominently in extra-curricular activity on the campus. Sam Behrends, Kermit Caldwell and Daniel Lovelace are members of ODK. Lovelace also was active in student government, along with Claude Hamrick, Bill McLeod and Grady Patterson, while Dave Braswell and Ralph Stowe were active in publications as staff members of The Student.

Among the thirty-seven members and fifteen pledges of the Timberlake chapter of Phi Alpha Delta this year were many prominent campus leaders. Two pledges, Leroy Robinson and Garrett Bailey, took scholastic honors in the first year law class. Robinson had the highest average in law school.

The fraternity house now has a well-furnished chapter room and a study room with a private law library. New furniture and drapes were purchased this year for the chapter room, and a coke machine was installed in order to secure a steady income for the library.

Fraternity meetings have featured such speakers as William P. Hodges, State Insurance Commissioner; Mayne Albright, widely known candidate for governor of the state; Superior Court Judge Henry L. Stevens; Superior Court Judge John J. Burney; and Secretary of State Thad Eure. In addition to regular weekly meetings at the chapter house, banquet meetings were held at Ted's and Club Bon Air in Raleigh.

The big event of the year was a joint meeting with the Duke and Carolina chapters at the Bon Air on April 28, with Douglas Edmonds, Supreme Justice of Phi Alpha Delta and a member of the California Supreme Court bench, as principal speaker.

Ruffin Inn of Phi Delta Phi, named in honor of Thomas Ruffin, distinguished nineteenth century North Carolina jurist, consisted this year of about fifty members and pledges. The fraternity won for the second time the annual law school scholarship award.

Among the members who served as campus leaders are Henry Huff, national debate champion, president of ODK leadership fraternity, and president of the Phi Society; Dagwood Kornegay, president of the Wake Forest Student Bar Association; Daniel Lovelace, president of the first year law class and president of the Eu Society; and Claude Hamrick, vice-president of the first year law class.

During the year the fraternity had a number of social dinners and parties at Club Bon Air, Upchurch's Cabin, and elsewhere. Regular weekly meetings were held at the chapter house in Hunter Dormitory, but the chapter held one meeting each month in the banquet room of the S & W Cafeteria in Raleigh. These monthly dinner meetings featured addresses by prominent guest speakers.

The outstanding events of the year were the two initiation ceremonies held in the chamber of the House of Representatives in Raleigh. Nine new members were taken into the fraternity in December. Present and participating in the ceremony were Associate Justices Devin, Barnhill, Seawell and Ervin of the North Carolina Supreme Court. Justice Devin delivered the main address at a banquet which followed the initiation. Fifteen members were added in March, in a joint ceremony with the Carolina and Duke chapters, which was followed by a banquet in the Virginia Dare Ballroom of the Sir Walter Hotel, with T. Lamar Caudle, Assistant Attorney General of the United States, as principal speaker.

Working in conjunction with Professor Menard's class in legal writing, the Wake Forest Student Bar Association held this year a successful term of "The Supreme Court of Wake." The Moot Court bench was composed of members of the faculty and such outstanding members of the North Carolina Bar as C. W. Weathers, College Trustee; Daniel Edwards, N. C. legislator; and J. E. Tucker, Assistant Attorney-General. When one of the visiting justices was unavoidably prevented from presiding, third-year student Ray Swain filled in very creditably as justice.

In addition to addresses by the lawyers who served as Moot Court justices, the Bar Association sponsored addresses by other legal notables, including Federal Judge D. E. Henderson, of the District Court for the Western District of North Carolina.

A trial court term was held in the spring under the leadership of Professor Soule. Both this term of Moot Court and the term of appellate court held in the fall provided law students with instructive experience and practical training in a variety of courtroom situations.

Members of the Bar Associations of Wake Forest College and the University of North Carolina journeyed to Duke University, where, as guests of the Duke Bar Association, they heard President Frank Holman of the American Bar Association.

Nor was the social side forgotten. The Bar Association sponsored a spring banquet for the law students and the law school faculty, with Justice Ervin as the principal speaker.

Marshal Dagwood Kornegay pounds gavel for order as court begins.

Moot Court

Robed Justices Soule, Menard and Joslin file into the courtroom. Court Clerk Martin Peterson gives briefs of case to the justices.

Attorney Glenn Brown presents the state's case. On right, Clerk Peterson.

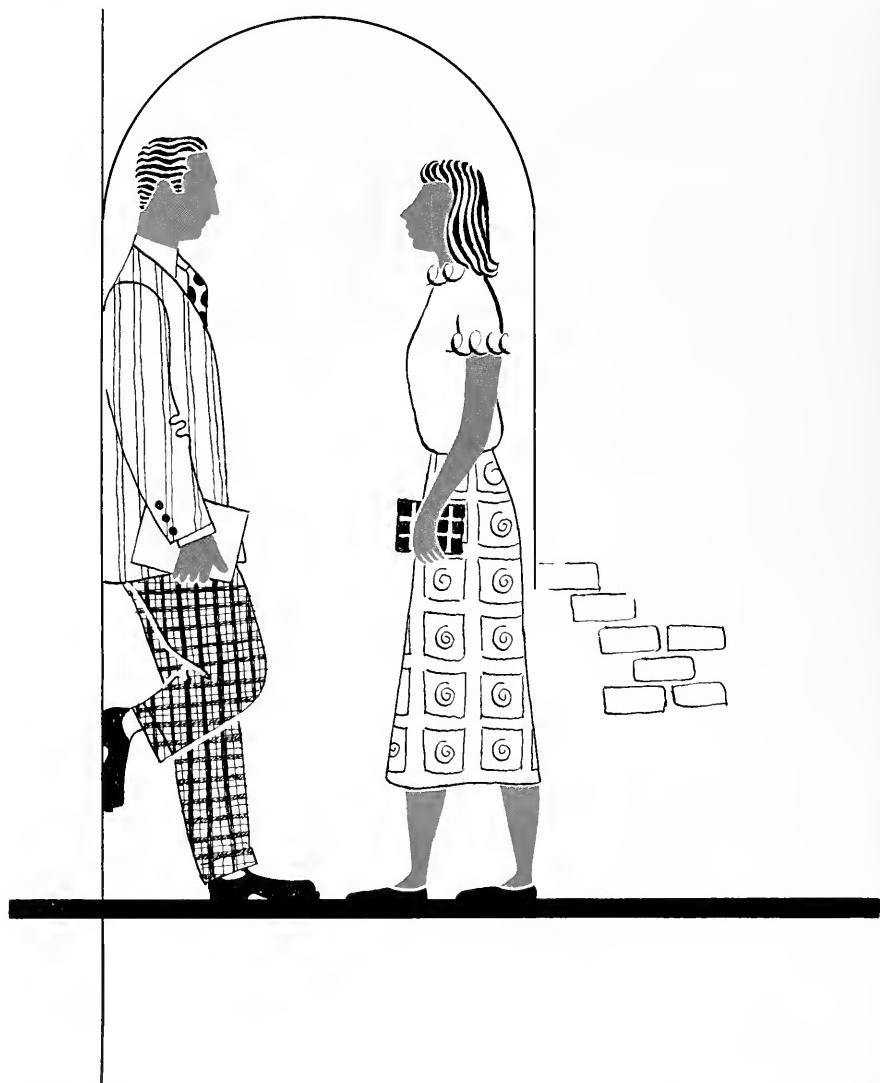

STATE v. TROUT, case before the Supreme Court of Wake, on appeal from the Superior Court of Forest County: Trout was convicted of manslaughter on the basis of a motion picture showing John Bass being drawn into the water by Trout's fish-hook. Trout's attorneys, Murray Tate and Nathan Cole contend that the movie was improperly shown and that death was accidental. Warren Casey and Glenn Brown, for the State, argue that the evidence was proper and the death was manslaughter, being caused by Trout, who was fishing out of season. After deliberation, Justices Joslin, Menard and Soule held that the law was on Trout's side and reversed the decision.

ORGANIZATIONS

Wake Forest students have always been enthusiastic joiners, and this year was no exception. The variety of activities and purposes offered by the seventy-five student organizations on the campus was wide enough to interest practically everyone, and there were very few students who were not members of at least one group. Eight clubs were organized at Wake Forest for the first time, and three existing organizations made new national affiliations. Several others, including the Physics Club, the Mathematics Club and the Physical Education Majors' Club, made plans to affiliate with national honorary fraternities.

The activities of forty-six of these organizations are covered briefly on the following forty-six pages. Twenty-two other groups, including those in the fields of law and athletics and those primarily of a social nature, appear elsewhere in the yearbook. The seven clubs which were omitted from the annual are the Philosophy Club, an honorary fraternity for philosophy majors; the Canterbury Club, an organization for Episcopalian students; the Westminster Fellowship, an organization for Presbyterian students; the Dames Club, an organization for students' wives; The Outing Club, an organization for co-eds who are interested in outdoor life; The Young Republicans Club, an organization for students who are active Republicans; and the Bachelors Club, an organization which sought to promote social life on the campus.

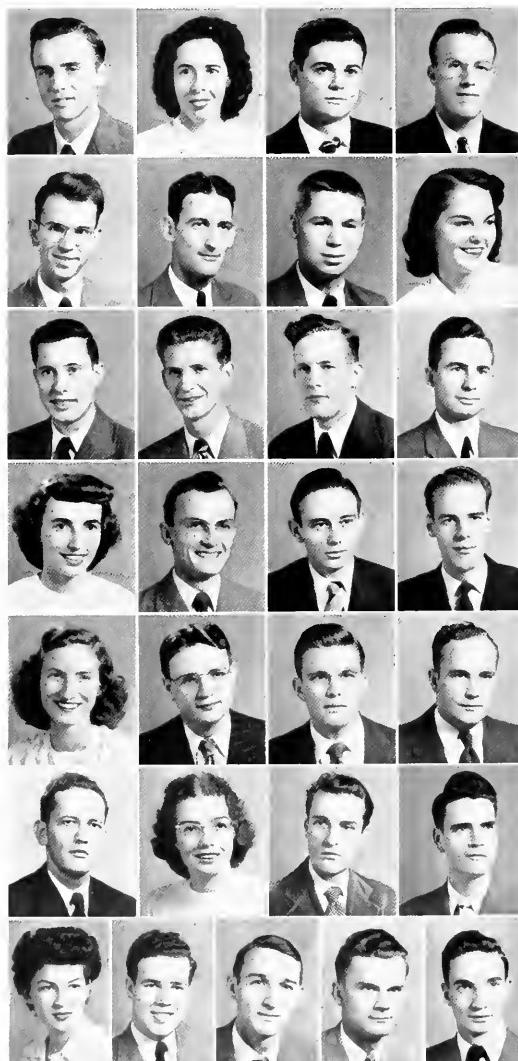

The sixty-eight groups which do appear include a club for Masons, a club for students from Florida, and even a club for club presidents. Classifying such a diverse assortment of organizations is no easy task. The majority of them, however, fall in the six categories which constitute the sections of this second book of the 1949 HOWLER.

The first section presents the eighteen honorary fraternities and shows the initiation ceremonies conducted by one of these groups. Next comes the student government section, which includes a portrayal of a student council trial. The third section introduces the nine religious organizations on the campus and offers a quick look at Religious Focus Week. The story of the literary societies, the debate squad and the Little Theater is told in the next section, one feature of which is a series of informal scenes from a major Little Theater production. The fifth section is about campus music activity and the man on whom it centers. The final section covers the activities of the four student publications and describes life on publications row.

These twenty-nine students were elected this year to Phi Beta Kappa, the nation's leading honorary scholastic fraternity. They were selected on the basis of scholarship and character from the upper twenty per cent of students who had completed seven semesters of work toward baccalaureate degrees.

Initiation ceremonies took place on April 22, with Dr. J. Grafton Love, of the Mayo Clinic, as the principal speaker. Following a banquet at the Community House, the candidates for membership were initiated at a meeting held in the chapel of the Music-Religion Building. Dr. Love was made an honorary member.

Omicron Delta Kappa is an outstanding national honorary leadership society. This year, as in the past, the Beta Alpha circle, Wake Forest chapter of the organization, added to its membership men who distinguished themselves in the five phases of campus life: scholarship; athletics; social and religious activities; publications; and speech, music and dramatics. Elections were held both in the fall and in the spring.

Irving E. Carlyle and James Hoge, prominent Wake Forest alumni, were elected to associate membership. There were fifteen associate faculty members, four of whom were elected as active faculty members for the year.

The most significant project of the fraternity was the establishment of the Student Presidents' Association. Five members of Beta Alpha circle attended the national convention of Omicron Delta Kappa, which was held early in April in Atlanta, Georgia.

WHO'S WHO AMONG STUDENTS IN AMERICAN UNIVERSITIES AND COLLEGES

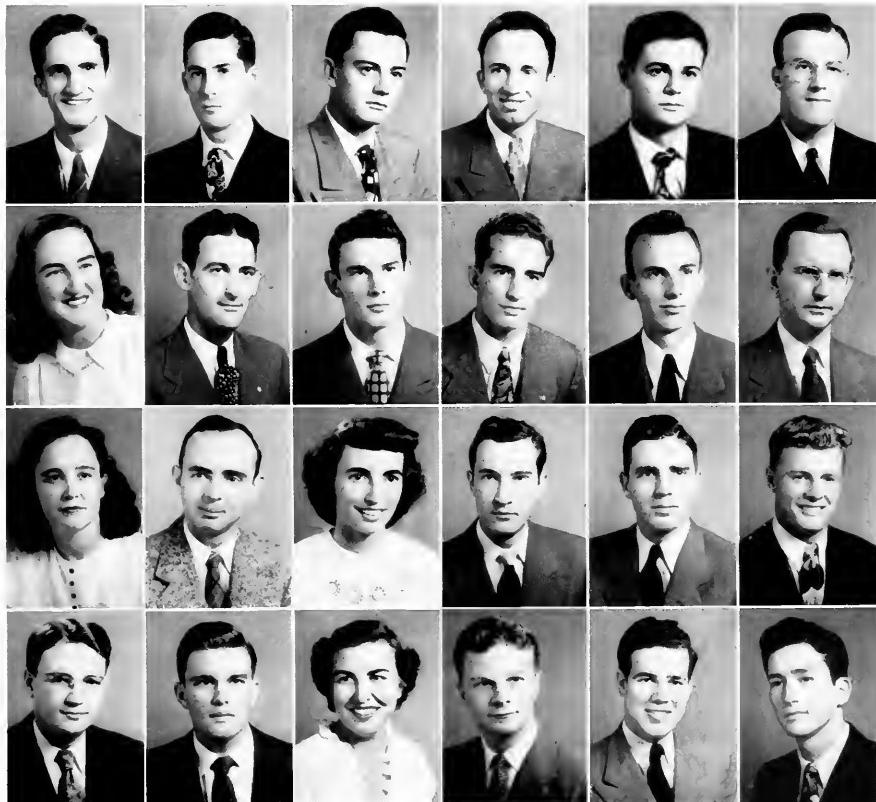

Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges is published at the University of Alabama. Considerations in election to Who's Who are character, scholarship, leadership in extra-curricular activities, and potentialities for future usefulness to business and society.

Students are elected to Who's Who by a committee of faculty members and students appointed by the Dean of the College. Those who have completed two years of college work are eligible for consideration.

The organization establishes an authoritative reference volume on outstanding students in the universities and colleges of the United States. Who's Who holds no meetings, elects no officers, and has no definite plan of organization. Membership is purely an honor.

THE MONOGRAM CLUB

This year the Monogram Club redecorated and refurnished its student-center club room, but that was only one of its many activities.

The Wake Forest club joined the Monogram Clubs of State, Carolina and Duke to form a Big Four Monogram Council. The Council will encourage better interscholastic relations and will strive to improve and advance sportsmanship and participation in athletics on all four campuses.

In the spring, the club sponsored for the second time the annual intra-squad football game, which climaxed the football spring training session.

PI KAPPA DELTA FORENSICS

HENRY HUFF

President

Pi Kappa Delta is a national honorary forensic fraternity, and as such it recognizes excellence in intercollegiate oratory, debate and public speaking.

North Carolina Beta, Wake Forest's chapter of Pi Kappa Delta, maintained its traditional high national standing during the year 1948-1949. In keeping with its policy of recognizing forensic excellence, the fraternity initiated two men in February: Gordon Kelly and Bill Waggoner.

It is chiefly the debate field in which North Carolina Beta is distinguished. This year the chapter was defending champion at the national Pi Kappa Delta debate tournament at Bradley College, Peoria, Illinois. Its members have been recognized as nationally outstanding debaters in meets at which all sections of the country were represented.

JAMES H. FORREST

President

A widely-publicized Physics Fair, presented this year by the Physics Club, was the most spectacular event promoted by any honorary fraternity on the Wake Forest campus. The fair consisted of interesting and entertaining devices which illustrated various physical principles and phenomena.

Canned music, a public address system, posters, lighted signs and "the glad hand" were used to ballyhoo the fair. More than four hundred students attended the two-day event.

Most of the club's meetings featured scientific lectures and discussions led by professors and students. The only outside speaker was A. D. McFayden of the U. S. Patent Office.

The club started this year the practice of awarding a plaque to the member who does the most outstanding work in physics.

The Beta Rho chapter of Beta Beta Beta completed its first and very full year last April. Short talks by student members based on results of their own research generally filled the bi-monthly meeting periods. One of the year's high spots was a spaghetti banquet in the Johnson Building, with menus printed in Latin. Tri Beta has attracted considerable attention with its campus improvement program: planting shrubbery, fertilizing the magnolias, and starting a rose garden.

MATH CLUB

JOHN PERSON
President

This year the Mathematics Club concentrated on fulfilling the plans of its founders. The club was organized a year and a half ago with the intention of establishing a Wake Forest chapter of Pi Mu Epsilon, national honorary mathematics fraternity. This year the group met enough requirements to submit an application for membership to the national fraternity headquarters. Meeting programs were made up mostly of discussions of activity in various branches of mathematics and lectures by visiting mathematicians.

North Carolina Gamma chapter of Alpha Epsilon Delta completed this spring its first year as a national honorary fraternity. The chapter's most important project was a cancer education program conducted to acquaint citizens of surrounding communities with the symptoms and dangers of this dread disease. The fraternity also contributed to CARE, overseas relief society, and administered aptitude tests to underclassmen. Programs have included medical movies, talks by eminent physicians, and occasional dinner meetings.

ETA SIGMA PHI

CLASSICAL LANGUAGE

Wake Forest's honorary classical language fraternity, Eta Sigma Phi, started the year by revising its six-year-old constitution. The revision makes the local constitution similar to those of most other chapters of the fraternity. Information gathered from the Nunius, the national Eta Sigma Phi journal, was partly responsible for the action taken on the constitution. This publication, which carries news of what classical language groups on other campuses are doing, was received by local chapter members for the first time in several years.

One of the chief events of the year occurred in January, when Dr. Preston H. Epps, Professor of Greek at the University of North Carolina, addressed the local chapter and its guests. He offered some new views on the supposed fatalism of Greek tragedy.

SIGMA PI ALPHA

MODERN LANGUAGE

Sigma Pi Alpha, honorary modern language fraternity, has as its purpose the creation of interest in the affairs, customs and languages of foreign nations and the fostering of a better understanding of their cultures through the study of their languages.

The Epsilon chapter, at Wake Forest, held meetings twice a month. Programs for various meetings alternated from German to French to Spanish, and usually consisted of discussions led by student or faculty members. One of the outstanding lectures of the year dealt with all three languages. This was Faculty Adviser J. C. O'Flaherty's address on the relationship of modern language to other fields of activity.

The chapter held only one initiation this year. At this initiation, which took place in the spring, twenty students were inducted as members.

The year 1948-1949 was mostly one of revision and planning for the International Relations Club. Under Faculty Adviser Henry S. Stroupe and Presidents Dale Cooper and Richard Bass a new constitution was adopted and membership requirements were altered. In addition to meeting the scholastic requirements of the organization, new members must declare an interest in international relations.

As a unit the IRC provides information on domestic affairs of pertinence to the United States and critically examines political situations throughout the world, especially in the light of their effect on our nation.

This year's bi-monthly meetings consisted mostly of discussions and forums on such subjects as The Truman Foreign Policy, The Atlantic Pact, The Minden Trial, and U. S. Participation in the World Council of Churches.

Wake Forest's World Federalists did a good bit of traveling this year.

Local Federalists were frequent visitors at Duke, Carolina and W.C.U.N.C. Students from all over the state gathered at mass meetings at these schools to hear such speakers as Leland Stowe, internationally known news correspondent and world traveler; Cord Meyer, Jr., author and national president of United World Federalists; and Robert Lee Humber, Wake Forest alumnus and one of the founders of the Federalist movement.

Wake Forest members also attended the organization's fall convention at N. C. State. The year's big trip, however, was the Washington Caravan this spring, in which twelve Wake Forest students took part. Students from all over North Carolina journeyed by bus and automobile to Washington, where they lobbied for World Federalism and urged the passage of several bills then pending in Congress.

The club climaxed the year's activities with a banquet and prominent guest speaker, whose address was open to all interested visitors.

Among the speakers presented were Dr. Widgery of the Department of Philosophy of Duke University, who discussed "The Basis of Moral Law;" Dr. Edwin McNeill Potrat, former president of Colgate-Rochester Seminary, who presented a view of "The World Council of Churches"; Professor Robert Helm, who touched upon "The Problem of Evil"; and Dr. J. Clyde Turner, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Greensboro, who discussed the call to the ministry.

Highlighting the year's social activities was the perennially famous "Prophet's Frolic," which was held at the S & W Cafeteria in Raleigh.

Beta Beta Beta Holds Initiation Ceremony and Party

Beta Beta Beta, honorary biological sciences fraternity, has become one of the most active honoraries at Wake Forest College. The fraternity has obtained a chapter room of its own in the Biology Building and has sponsored several worthwhile projects.

Pictured on this page are some of the activities connected with the group's annual initiation. To the right is an unusual banquet, held in a biology laboratory. Below is a pre-initiation party, held in the chapter room. Finally, there is the most important event of all, the actual initiation ceremony.

STUDENT COUNCIL

The primary function of the Student Council was the meting out of justice to students who violated the constitution and honor system established by the student body. Each offender was given a fair trial and exonerated or placed on probation, in accordance with the facts which were established through investigation of his case. One student was expelled from school after being found guilty of a second offense.

The Council also handled other matters which came within its jurisdiction. It supervised the activities of the Freshman Advisory Council and the Intramural Athletic Council. It managed the freshman election in the fall and the student body election in the spring. It attempted to solve the problem of inadequate parking facilities on the campus. It took charge of arrangements for Homecoming Game sponsors in October, and it fostered the March of Dimes campaign on the campus in February.

WOMEN'S GOVT. COUNCIL

MERLE DOTSON
President

The 1949 Women's Government Council was responsible for the presentation of an extensive activity program on the campus.

The first event sponsored by the Council was a dance held immediately after Homecoming in the High School Gym, with Jimmy Marshall's band. Two other dances followed. One, on Sadie Hawkins Day, was completed with bare feet and "He's Tooked" signs. The other was a spring formal given in coöperation with the Women's Recreation Association.

Just before Christmas holidays, all students were invited to receptions given in Bostwick Hall and New Dormitory and sponsored by the Council. During exam week the Council served mid-afternoon refreshments in the recreation room of the Music-Religion Building.

A delegation of four Council members represented Wake Forest at the April Convention of the Intercollegiate Association of Student Governments, held at Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Virginia.

In addition to serving in their respective capacities on the student council, they represented the student body in dealings with various individuals and with the student bodies of other colleges.

They also had charge of student body meetings, over which Matthis presided. Two such meetings were held this year, one to discuss a change in the constitution and one to nominate candidates for the May Court.

The Freshman Advisory Council came back to school early to prepare a week-long welcome for newcomers.

Freshmen and transfers were instructed about all phases of campus life, including that phase peculiar to orientation—Rat Court. Orientation week closed with a faculty reception.

Religious Organizations

THE BAPTIST STUDENT UNION

...LINK BETWEEN THE CHURCH AND THE STUDENT

BSU COUNCIL

One of the enduring memories of this year at Wake Forest has been the religious life on the campus.

Uniting the students to the local church and offering opportunities for maximum Christian living has been the task of the Baptist Student Union. Too large to coördinate as a body the activities of all organizations, it was guided by an executive council.

The Council began the year at a pre-school retreat at Camp Crabtree, near Raleigh. Inspiration, fellowship and plans for the year highlighted the week-end.

Several new religious groups were formed this year, and the extension department made use of a new station wagon.

Christmas found students helping ten needy families and caroling for all. Wake Forest students participated in the BSU Convention at Gastonia. Religious Focus Week provided for all a great climax to the year's work.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

With an enrollment of over three hundred, the college Sunday school began the year with one of the most outstanding faculties ever enlisted at Wake Forest.

Two new classes of an exclusive nature were formed this year. The first was a class for law students, under the direction of Dr. I. B. Lake, Jr. The second was a class consisting of married couples, which was organized for the convenience of the large number of couples attending Sunday school. This raised the total number of classes in the college Sunday school to eight.

Foundations were laid for sweeping changes in the curriculum for next year. A system of Sunday school courses organized on a semester basis was discussed and heartily approved both by faculty members and by students. All await with eager anticipation the results next year of the new series of class programs.

Class activity, however, was not always the center of attraction. Each Sunday morning brought a superb devotional period in the form of the worship program of the general assembly, held in the Religion Building chapel. Various programs, including skits, meditation, short talks, readings, and special music, were presented throughout the year.

The second semester brought the "new look" to all the classrooms, with the opening of all classes both to young men and to young women. This tended to give a more wholesome and integrated atmosphere. Additional teachers seem to have injected a new spirit of enthusiasm into the several groups.

The Sunday school, providing informal instruction from the Bible and close fellowship between student and teacher, was an outstanding contribution to the religious life of our campus.

Dr. Reid presents the Sunday School lesson to members of his class.

TRAINING UNION

"A union for training Baptists" effectively describes the Baptist Training Union as it has functioned this year. With five individual unions and a "forum group" a place was provided for each student interested in training for better church membership and fuller Christian living.

The forum group has been a drawing card throughout the year, with such speakers as Mr. Best, principal of the local colored school, Dr. Budd Smith, Dr. Hubert Porteat, and Professor Robert Helm. Real personal help was provided for all who attended.

One of the unions gave a series of religious dramas for its Sunday night programs. Another emphasized the importance of religious music by using it in each of its programs.

The General Assembly programs united all unions in a period of thought and meditation, featuring various meaningful worship services.

An unusual study course was held in October. One of Paul's letters was assigned for study each Sunday, and an examination was given the following week on the assignment. This offered a helpful Bible study to the members of each union.

An officers' clinic was held for each new group of union officers. These clinics, offered at the beginning of each semester, helped the officers to plan their work for the semester.

In April another of the now famous B.T.U. socials was held. This social, a joint event for all six of the unions, featured a scavenger hunt. It was well attended, and provided an evening of fun and fellowship for everyone.

MINISTERIAL CONFERENCE

Numbering over a hundred, the 1948-1949 members of the Cullow Ministerial Conference recall many hours of delightful fellowship and thoughtful worship together. Under the capable leadership of Walter Davis and Julian Motley the conference this year witnessed many highlights that have helped to color the religious life of Wake Forest.

One cannot remember the conference this year without mentioning the very successful Prophets' Fling and Prophets' Frolic, the two annual socials. The conference also treasures the many informational messages and addresses brought by members of our faculty, educators from other institutions, and leaders in the North Carolina Baptist Convention. Particularly worthwhile was the series of lectures on "Evangelism," delivered by Dr. J. O. Mixon, pastor of Tabernacle Baptist Church in Raleigh and President of the State Convention.

One of the most interesting programs of the year was a round table discussion by six members of the conference of how well Christianity is meeting the spiritual challenge of the world of today. With Professor Robert Helm acting as moderator, the six students covered the various aspects of the subject quite extensively. After they had presented their views, all those attending the meeting were invited to participate in the discussion.

YOUNG WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

Enlisted in the Missionary Enterprise, 184 willing girls joined in to make this year a good one for the Young Women's Auxiliary.

The year began with a tea for all new co-eds, given in the home of Dr. Blackburn by the local Women's Missionary Society.

In September, pajama parties were held in each dormitory for the purpose of enlisting new YWA members. Nine circles were organized at this time.

In December, Miss Violet Long, missionary to Palestine, acquainted members with the situation there and the work being done in that field. One hundred eleven dollars in offering was taken for the Lottie Moon Fund.

The Young Women's Auxiliary has been active throughout the year in local missionary work. Cottage prayer meetings were held each week in the Negro section of town. Clothing was provided for needy children in the local school. Boxes were sent to Europe during the Christmas season.

As a climax to the week of prayer for home missions in March, a pageant, "The Call to Christian Youth," offered a stirring challenge to the young men and women on the campus.

Under the leadership of the YWA Council, the guidance of Mrs. Eugene Olive, and the willing spirit of the girls, the YWA experienced a very successful year.

CHRISTIAN SERVICE GROUP

RUFUS FISHER
President

The Christian Service Group is well named, for it is truly made up of Christians in service. We of Wake Forest owe to them our noonday prayer meetings, "singspiration," cottage prayer meetings, and annual Christmas caroling. In fact, most missionary and extension work carried on here originates with this group.

This year at Christmas time the group distributed many baskets of food and clothing and sent many boxes overseas. Throughout the year, they took a special interest in the Negro section of the community. One blind colored lady was clothed, fed, and taken to church many times by members of the group.

The personal satisfaction resulting from the service they have rendered is dramatic proof that indeed it is more blessed to give than to receive.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION MAJORS' CLUB

VIVIAN HARRINGTON
President

This year the Religious Education Majors' Club presented programs stressing methods by which the individual can better fill places of service in Religious Education. Study group programs were presented on the teaching of children, the direction of recreational projects, and the use of drama and music in the Religious Education field.

The club compiled and sold student directories, and did extension work in local Sunday Schools and churches. Members organized several Training Unions during the year.

Even planning socials for club members presented an opportunity for training. A party was held in September for new members, a Valentine banquet was held on February 14, and a picnic was given in the spring for all members.

The Mission Volunteer Group, made up of students preparing for foreign mission work, satisfied a vital need of the volunteer students on the campus, as they studied together and acquainted themselves with the missionary enterprise.

The outstanding event of the year was a visit by Mrs. Zorina Soule Kukde from India, traveling secretary for the Student Volunteer Movement, an interdenominational organization of international scope. She was a guest on the campus for three days.

Members held cottage prayer meetings every week in the homes of sick and underprivileged members of the community, both colored and white.

Several returned missionaries, filled with the story of the need "over there," spoke to the group during the year.

One night each week, the small group of Methodist students who constituted the Methodist Student Fellowship met to hold worship services, to have fellowship together, and to plan wholesome recreational activities. Meetings were held on Sunday nights during the first semester and on Tuesday nights during the second. The principal feature of most meetings was an address by a guest speaker.

Highlights of the year included a visit to the Methodist Youth Group at North Carolina State College and a visit to Wake Forest by a like group from the University of North Carolina.

Sponsors Week

The week of February 6-13 was Religious Focus Week at Wake Forest. During this week a team of capable leaders chosen to help in solving the problems that arise in campus living sought to reach every phase of campus life and influence it for Christianity.

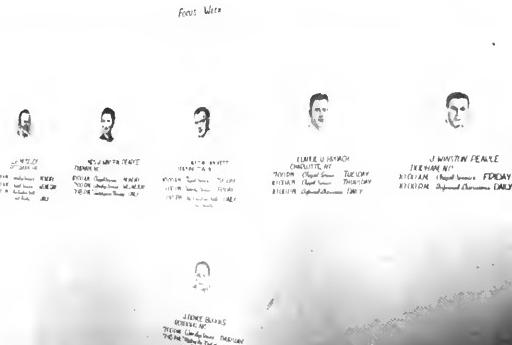

The calendar of activity included worship services in the Baptist church every morning and evening, classroom visitations, evening seminars, informal discussion groups in dormitories and rooming houses, and personal conferences for all students desiring them.

Attendant social activities included a reception for student presidents, team members and faculty, a pastor's reception for team members, and a party.

The Philomathesian Literary Society began the year with a highly successful membership drive. All new students received letters asking them to visit both Societies and then join one of them. Twenty-three new members were initiated in the fall.

Attendance at the meetings was very good, with a high average of about fifty at every meeting. Programs, designed to point toward Society Day and Founder's Day, were composed mainly of various types of speeches given by members of the Society. There was an intra-Society contest to decide on representatives for the two contests.

At the end of the week's program before the Society Day Banquet, the Phi's had come out victorious. Gordon Kelley, Dave Clark, Lucie Jenkins, and Elva Lawrence swept the Debate Tournament, with Gordon and Lucie being chosen the best debaters. Bob Crouch won the After Dinner Speech Contest, Marjorie Macey won the dramatic reading, Ray Stone won the Impromptu Speech, and Allen Johnson won the Declamation Contest. Final score: Phi's 85; Eu's—50.

P. A. CLINE, JR.
President, first semester

DANIEL LOVELACE
President, second semester

As is the custom, all incoming students were invited to attend a meeting of the Euzelian Literary Society and, if they were favorably impressed, to join. The Euzelians feel that through this activity they contributed to the friendliness on the campus and to the favorable impression that new students received of Wake Forest.

Although the Phi Society won the Society Day contest, the Euzelians did not come out without a win. Members of the Eu's won in the Oration, the Poetry Reading, the Impromptu Speech, and the Extempore divisions. Each program during the year was pointed toward developing students in the different phases of speech-making, not just for the contests, but for all their lives. The Eu's feel that they will have accomplished something if they can help one student in this field.

As usual, Dr. Hubert Poteat read Green Pastures under the sponsorship of the Eu's. The reading was given in the church auditorium to accommodate the large group attending.

DEBATE SQUAD

Manager

The Debate Squad had a very successful year under the leadership of its new director, Professor Franklin R. Shirley. With Henry Huff, the student manager, leading the way, Lamar Caudle, Bill Wagoner, Bob Crouch, Gordon Kelley, and other members of the team brought honors to the college from all over the United States.

Wake Forest's Debating Team participated in a recorded debate with sixteen of the top debating squads in the country. It was the first time in the history of debating that records had been used in a formal debate.

Besides holding individual non-decision debates with Duke, Furman, Georgia, and Elon, the team entered most of the top tournaments in the country. First, they went to the University of South Carolina for the Carolina Forensics Tournament in October—and won. Henry Huff was voted the best in the tournament and Bill Wagoner, in his first debate in intercollegiate competition, won second place. In November, in a practice tournament at the University of Vermont, the squad won six out of eight debates. No official winners were declared in this tournament.

In the Old Dominion Tournament held in December, Wake Forest won a second place tie with The University of Richmond. The George Washington team won first place. At the South Atlantic Debate Tournament in March, the team from Wake Forest defeated teams from the Naval Academy, Carson-Newman, the University of North Carolina, George Washington, and the University of Florida.

Professor Shirley records debate being delivered by Bob Crouch.

At the Southern Speech Tournament in Waco, Texas, Wake Forest had the only senior college team to go through the tournament undefeated. The Wake Forest team also went to an Invitational Tournament at the University of Virginia. This was a non-decision tournament.

The greatest glory was won at the National Pi Kappa Delta Tournament at Peoria, Illinois. Our team won a rating of excellent in winning six out of eight debates.

All in all, it was a good year for the Wake Forest Debating Squad. Several new members were added to the team, and an even greater year is expected in 1950 when they get the needed experience in tournament debating.

LITTLE THEATER

This was a year of firsts for the Wake Forest Little Theater. For the first time, the group attempted serious drama in Ibsen's Ghosts, and for the first time, a full length play by Shakespeare was presented by the college group.

The presidents, Roger Jackson and John Lanier, deserve much of the credit for such a spectacular year.

The major production of the fall semester was the Kesselsring comedy, Arsenic and Old Lace, with Harriet Smith and Mary Ward playing the parts of the wonderful old ladies. They were supported by the able acting of Paul Moyle, Vivian Snuggs, and Harold Powell. The play was under the direction of Tommy Johnson and was hailed as one of the most delightful comedies ever produced at Wake Forest College.

Two major productions were presented during the spring semester. Henrik Ibsen's Ghosts, directed by Ralph Williams, was given on March 18 and 19, 1949. Tillie Roberts, Cree Deane, Sonny Burroughs, Don Jackson, and David Snipes gave the piece the acting it needed to be a hit.

The outstanding achievement of the year was the production of William Shakespeare's immortal Othello. George Mallonee, a past president of the group, was given the job of directing the play. The part of Othello was played by Bob Phelps, and Milton Marney played Iago. Betty Pringle, Charlotte Duling, Paul McCordel, Don Jackson, and Ralph Church had significant parts in the production.

Members of the Little Theater are proud of the accomplishments of the past year. They feel that a significant step has been taken toward enlarging the outlook of the Wake Forest Little Theater, and consequently of the students at Wake Forest.

The major fall production of the Wake Forest Little Theater was the hilarious comedy, Arsenic and Old Lace. Much hard behind-the-scenes effort went into this play, as is always the case with a Little Theater production. Some of this activity is shown on this page, although many phases, such as the excellent work of the costume and the publicity committees, have been left out. On the next page are scenes from the play.

The seventy-five voice Wake Forest College Glee Club, under the direction of Professor Thane E. McDonald, had a full and successful season. The two highlights were the singing of Handel's Messiah and the performance during the Magnolia Festival on May 4.

For the third straight year the Glee Club presented Handel's immortal Messiah during the Christmas Vesper Service on December 12. There were two performances to take care of the huge crowd, one for the students and guests, and one for townspeople, faculty, and out-of-town visitors.

During the annual Magnolia Festival the Glee Club and the Band gave a joint musical program. The highlight of the program was the last number, when the two groups joined in the rendition of one of Stephen Foster's immortal songs of the South.

A CAPPELLA CHOIR

The Wake Forest College A Cappella Choir, under the able leadership of Director Thane E. McDonald and President Edith Allen, had a very successful year. To start the year off right, they sang for several chapel services. Then, in November, the choir represented Wake Forest at the Baptist State Convention, singing twice for the Charlotte Assembly.

Throughout the year, the Choir made several single out-of-town appearances before churches, schools, and various civic groups. One of the highlights of the season was the second annual Spring Tour, covering over a thousand miles in North Carolina and Virginia. The singers gave eighteen concerts in the short time from March 26 to April 3.

The A Cappella Choir made most of the recordings in the album "Music from Wake Forest College," the first such album to be attempted at Wake Forest. For the third successive year the Choir was invited to give concerts over Radio Station WPTF. They broadcast on two different occasions in March. The Choir appeared twice during the spring Magnolia Festival. For the second straight year, they sang at the Baccalaureate Service.

Professor McDonald has developed this group into one of the best known A Cappella Choirs in the South Atlantic region. The group can well be proud of the record they have set.

The Band started off the year by playing at all of the home football games, and the William and Mary, Duke, and Clemson games away from Wake Forest. In addition, they played at the Christmas parade in Winston-Salem, and paraded before President Truman in Raleigh. The highlight of the year was a trip to the Dixie Bowl in Birmingham. The Band also participated in the Magnolia Festival.

The Wake Forest College Little Symphony, with Mr. Claude K. Cook directing, assisted the Raleigh Concert Opera Group with the production of Carmen, as well as playing for the operetta The Only Girl, a major event of the Magnolia Festival. They presented a spring concert on April 20, and gave another program during the Magnolia Festival.

Professor Thane McDonald, Director of Music, is one of the busiest members of the Wake Forest faculty. Through the years, his name has come to be synonymous with music at Wake Forest College. In addition to carrying a normal load of classroom work, he directs the college Band, Glee Club and A Cappella Choir, gives private instruction in piano, plays the organ at worship services in the Baptist church, and directs the church choir. Besides these regular activities he takes an active part in many special music events.

WFDD, the baby of publications row, spent its first year growing up. And its growth was phenomenal.

It didn't add any watts to the fifty it started out with, but it did add a new office with two sound-proof studios, a national network affiliation, new staff members and a lot of records.

In the middle of April the station acquired the old Zeta Chi house for a studio. It was remodeled by the maintenance crew, and equipment was then moved from the old studio in the press box of Groves Stadium. The new building is nearer the campus and provides needed office space.

Last fall, through the courtesy of WRAL, a Raleigh station, WFDD acquired certain services of the Mutual Broadcasting System's FM hookup. Nationwide programs were piped in this way.

The station is particularly proud of its record of broadcasts of out-of-the-studio events. Church services and music department programs were heard regularly. The out-of-town sports broadcasts were probably the most popular.

The William and Mary football game was carried, and while the broadcast of the Clemson game ran into technical difficulties, several baseball games were heard, including games at Duke and Carolina.

Actually, the only evidence of the Voice of Wake Forest on publications row is a bulletin board between the Student and the Old Gold and Black offices. Nevertheless, in the daily dissemination of news and entertainment the station is much like the publications, and for that reason is grouped with them here.

Features and advertising crowded the pages of this year's Old Gold and Black.

Virtually every week saw many by-lined stories covering various aspects of Wake Forest college life. Stories covered everything from the doings of a leprechaun in the New Dorm to a litter of puppies at the Colonial Club.

The streamlined editorial page generally carried columns by Bill Bethune, Walt Friedenberg and Alice Puryear. With many students this was the most popular page in the paper—but not only for its features: on this page also appeared some very effective editorials. This year the Old Gold and Black conducted two editorial campaigns, one for campus improvement and beautification, the other for better handling of traffic around the campus. Both campaigns were successful: the campus was improved considerably and a new traffic island was installed at the highway intersection to the south of the campus.

Each issue of Old Gold and Black carried highlights of the week's news events. Editor Grogan got out an early assignment sheet and maintained adequate coverage of all fields of campus activity.

Some of the bigger stories of the year were: record enrollment, Duke and Dixie Bowl football games, ODK and Phi Beta Kappa elections, campus elections, the baseball team's winning streak, President Kitchin's resignation, and graduation.

Business Manager Paul Moyle provided the editorial staff with an adequate budget and even had a surplus at the end of the year. The prize issue in the eyes of the business staff was the first one—twelve pages and showing a profit.

As in past years, the office was always crowded on Tuesday nights. Each week the rush to meet the deadline continued into the wee hours of the morning, as another Old Gold went to press.

The North Carolina Collegiate Press Association did not know how to judge this year's Student. It wasn't just a picture magazine, or a humor magazine, or a literary magazine, so they put it in a special classification and named it the best all-around magazine in the state.

That was just another way of saying that The Student was different and that it was popular, an effect planned and largely executed by Editor Harold Thomas Pace Hayes. He blueprinted the magazine during the summer: oil painting cover, three-column make-up, and humorous picture stories about the campus, in addition to the strictly literary efforts of students.

Music columnist Bill Hensley, cartoonist Bob Sherrill, and story illustrators Betty Isbell and Jan Young in Student office. Isbell helped paint the wall mural.

RALPH HERRING
Cover Artist

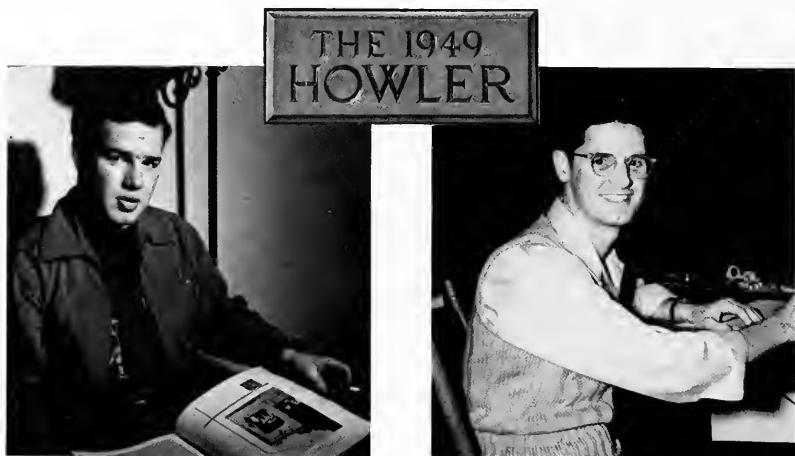

Editor Hayes gathered talent, too. Ralph Herring's covers were rated by the Southern Collegian "the best college art in the country." Bill McIlwain turned a few facts gathered by diligent research into such legends as "The Man who ate Fried Cat," and "The Fires in the Forest." Walt Friedenberg's stories on dating co-eds and getting arrested and Ralph Stowe's account of the Wake Forest economic breakdown were three in a long list of humor stories. Cartoons by Bob Sherrill and J. Brubaker added to the humorous appeal of the magazine.

The literary phase of the magazine was filled with articles, stories and columns. Notable here was John Byers, who won both short story contests. Betty Isbell and Jan Young were story illustrators. Articles ranged from character sketches of students to an analysis of the Deacons' "T." One of the most provocative of the year was Ed Friedenberg's story on modern architecture versus Georgian for the Winston-Salem campus. Many articles had thorough picture coverage by Jim Anderson.

Column features included a title-page editorial and music reviews. Walt Friedenberg and Bill McIlwain helped Hayes with editorial policy. When Hayes left in the spring these two put out the last two issues of the magazine.

Lee Royall and his business staff were no better off with the new editors than with their predecessor, who had established the policy of spending every available cent on each issue, and spending it wisely. As a result, this year's Student was the most popular and most widely read student magazine ever published at Wake Forest.

THE 1949 HOWLER, as you can see, is big! It is the biggest HOWLER ever published. It was a big, tough job putting it out.

The job started in the spring of 1948, when Editor Trueblood and his chief photographer, Stan Vetter, began to cover spring elections and sports. It continued through the summer, when Trueblood planned most of the book. It stimulated feverish activity in the fall when the school year started.

Urged on by Trueblood's posters and chapel announcements the student body sat for pictures. A record number, 1,655 students, climbed to the Phi Hall and had their class pictures made.

In January the editorial staff began to work on copy; Vetter graduated and Jim Anderson became chief photographer. The plan of THE 1949 HOWLER began to fill out, but it took until the middle of May to complete it. Coverage was carried to as late a date as possible.

In January the efforts of Roy Moore and his business staff began to bear fruit. Moore sent letters and men to all parts of the state, selling the ads which absorbed part of the costs of production.

Immediately after exam week Friedenberg sent up a cry for copy. Lists and word counts kept everybody busy with a typewriter or a pencil, getting the copy down on paper in the right form. Finally, after everything went to the printer, the staff faced two more tasks: proof reading and distribution.

Thus was THE HOWLER put out. It records a phase of student life not gathered in any other place. It is a permanent record of the student activities at Wake Forest in 1948-1949.

PUBLICATIONS BOARD

BOB GROGAN, President

The publications board serves as a governing body for the three student publications of Wake Forest College. As such, it prescribes general courses of action but makes no attempt to interfere with editorial policy.

The board is composed of six faculty members and eleven student members. The faculty members include the faculty adviser to publications, the faculty advisers to the newspaper, the magazine and the yearbook, and certain administrative officials of the college. The student members include the editors and business managers of the three publications, the president of the student body, two representatives from the Old Gold and Black staff, and one representative each from the staffs of The Student and The Howler. These representatives are elected every spring by the student body, and any staff member who meets certain prescribed requirements is eligible for election as a representative from his publication.

The primary duty of the publications board is the annual election of publications editors and business managers. The student members of the board examine the records of all those eligible for each office, ask all candidates deemed worthy of consideration to appear before them in person, and select for recommendation to the faculty members the candidate who in their opinion is best qualified for each job. Approval of a candidate by the faculty members of the board constitutes his election to office.

This spring, the board elected Bill Bethune and Herb Paschal as co-editors of Old Gold and Black, Bob Sherrill and Bill Underwood as co-editors of The Student, and Ed Friedenberg as editor of The Howler. In addition, they elected Leo Derrick as business manager of the newspaper, Bernard Dixon as business manager of the magazine, and Kenneth Royal and Virginia Johnson as co-business managers of the yearbook.

Publications row was scene of colorful activity.

Publications row was the gathering place this year of one of the most colorful groups on the Wake Forest campus. Working, playing and even sleeping in the three offices across the hall from the bookstore, they lived in a world virtually their own—a world of copy and captions, dummies and deadlines, features and photographs, where the day often lasted till sunrise. They worked hard, sometimes under intense pressure, and loved it. And they had fun. Life on the row revolved around the typewriter, the trombone, and a thing called be-bop, with a barwa thrown in for good measure.

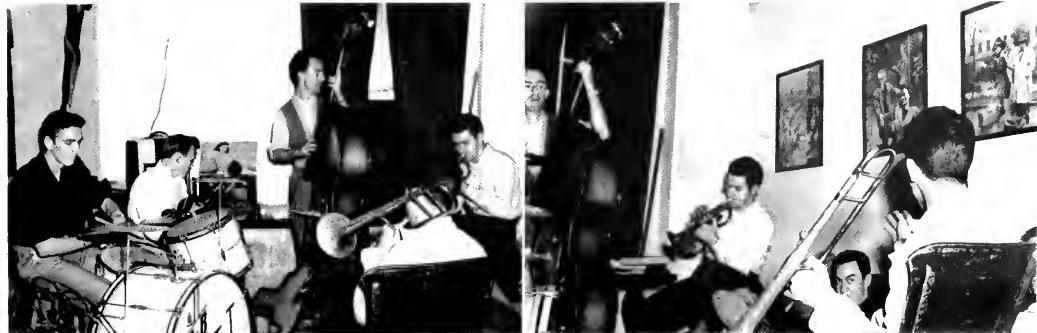

Publications trio, noted for nightly parades, performs at Old Gold and Black party.

Life on Publications Row

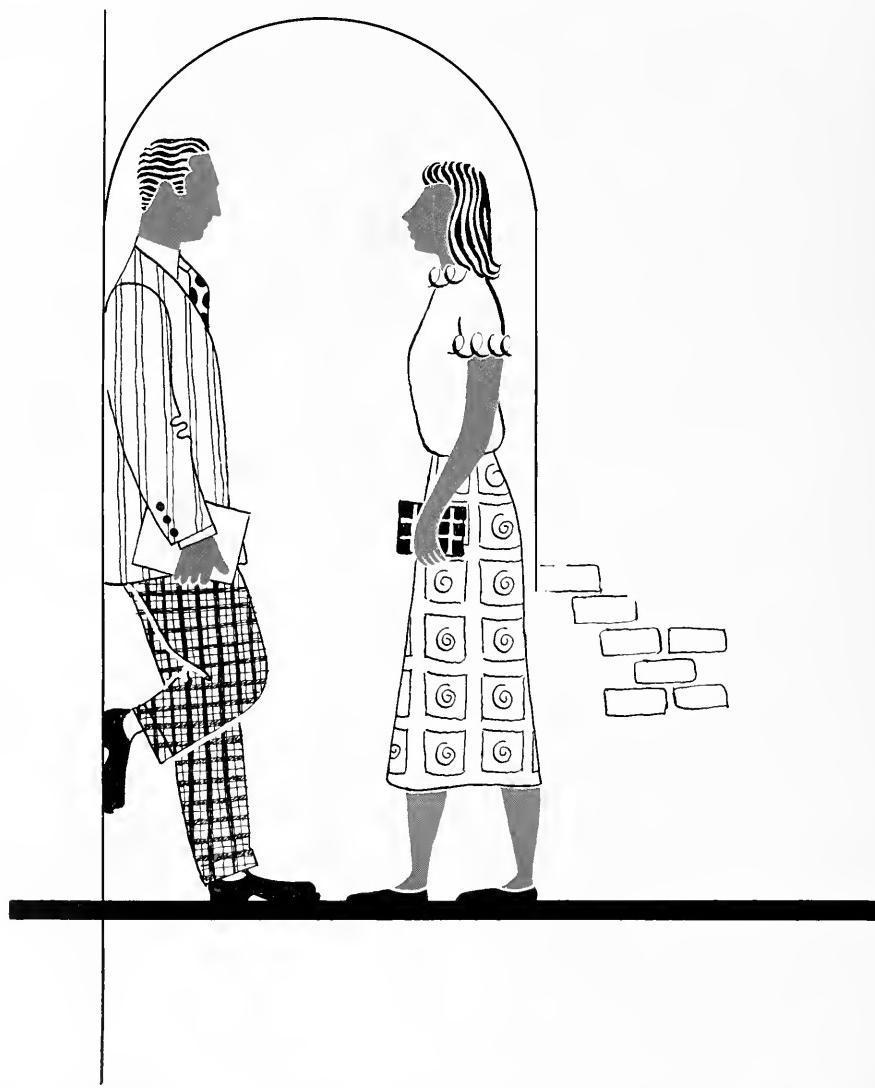

I. J. Friedenberg, in barwa, demonstrates widespread idea of publications activity.

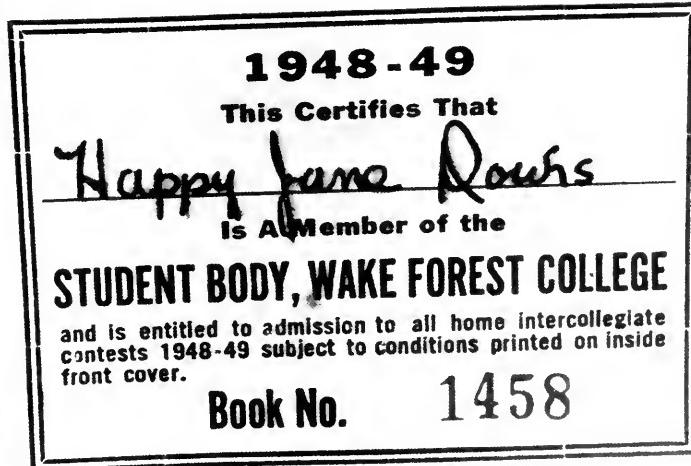

Bedsore (drums), Smith (guitar), Stowe (bass), Hayes (trombone) and Johnson (cornet) bring be-bop to life in Student office jam session.

ATHLETICS

Wake Forest College was rather successful in athletics this year. The Duke jinx was broken in all major sports after twenty-two consecutive athletic losses to the Blue Devils. The football team took the first Homecoming victory for Wake Forest in four years, and was selected to play in the Dixie Bowl at Birmingham, Alabama. The basketball team handed N. C. State their first conference defeat in two years, to break a twenty-seven-game string of conference wins for the Wolfpack. And the baseball team won twenty consecutive games, lost only two during the entire season, defeated Kentucky, Mississippi State, Notre Dame and Southern California in post-season tournament play, and went all the way to the final game in the National Collegiate Tournament.

In the line of individual performance, All-Southern football player John (Red) O'Quinn led the nation in pass receiving. Teammate Bill Gregus, also an All-Southern player, led the nation in kickoff returns. Diamond stars Gene Hooks and Charlie Teague were selected as members of the official All-American baseball team. Bill George took the Southern Conference wrestling championship. Golfer Arnold Palmer, conference champion for the past two years, took medalist honors at the National Collegiate Golf Tournament. And Bill Dye's dog Jamoke had pups.

The story told in this third book of the 1949 HOWLER is indeed a pleasant one. It is the record of a good year.

The football section, which begins the book, includes a statistical summary of the season, the story of each game, the record of the freshman team, and sidelights from various games. The next section covers the basketball season and describes life at the Colonial Club. The third section presents the baseball team and tells of their accomplishments, including their triumphant return from Wichita and the selection of two of them as All-Americans. Next comes a section on minor sports, which gives the activities of the tennis, golf and track teams and also the activities of the cheerleaders. The fifth section tells the story of the increasingly effective intramural sports program, which was under the direction of the Physical Education Department of the College. The final section describes the intramural program for co-eds, including their study labs in rhythms and folk dances.

Looking after the welfare of the football players both on the field and in the dressing room, these two did much to make the season a successful one for the Deacs.

Glancing quickly at the 1948 football season, we see . . . Peahen astounding the sports world by switching to the "T" . . . an old "Model T" sputtering and chugging in the game with George Washington and then breaking out for four quick touchdowns and a 27-13 victory . . . a letdown against Boston College and the 26-9 setback . . . the rebound and a 21-12 upset triumph over William and Mary . . . the scare thrown into Carolina rooters before the 28-6 loss . . . Duquesne rolled over easily, 41-13 . . . a sweet revenge victory over N. C. State, 34-13 . . . the thrill-packed 27-20 drubbing of Duke . . . the announcement of acceptance of a bid to the Dixie Bowl . . . the hard-fought 21-14 loss to Clemson . . . a "vicious and relentless football machine" crushing South Carolina 38-0 to complete four "revenge" victories for the losses in 1947 . . . John O'Quinn grabbing the number one spot in the country in pass receiving and Bill Gregus topping the nation in kickoff returns . . . Baylor's Bears grabbing a big first half lead in Birmingham's second Dixie Bowl and the Deacons fighting bitterly and outplaying the Texans in the second half, but dropping a 20-7 decision . . . and finally the intra-squad game this spring which made sports writers tab the Deacs as the team to beat next year.

Deacs Take G. W., 27-13

by FRANCIS E. STANN
Washington Star Correspondent

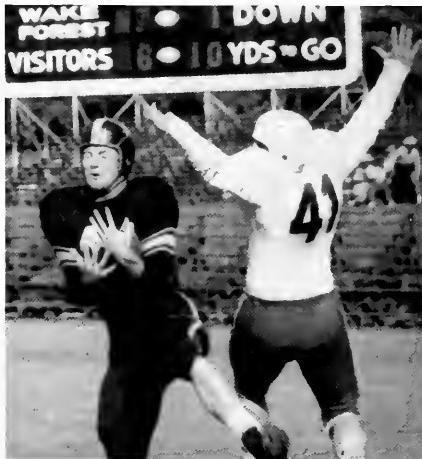

Wake Forest, N. C., Sept. 18: An alert, smartly coached George Washington football team threw a fright into favored Wake Forest today before the Deacons finally prevailed, 27 to 13, in the season opener for both outfits.

Wake Forest staged one sustained scoring drive to take a 7-0 lead after seven minutes of play. Hard-running Bill Gregus broke through the center of the line and ran 63 yards to the 1, and Harry Dowda carried the ball across after two plunges.

George Washington capitalized on a break to score a touchdown of its own in the opening quarter. Near the end of the half, the Deacons drove to the Colonials' 10, but it was still 7-6 at intermission.

Wake Forest moved steadily for 69 yards in the third quarter, with Gregus going over from the 1 to make the score 14-6, but George Washington opened the fourth quarter with the old "sleeper" play and climbed to within one point of the Deacs.

With a major upset looming, Wake Forest rallied and struck for two quick touchdowns. A 65-yard pass play from Tom Fetzer to Ed Hoey set up Dowda's second touchdown of the afternoon and two plays later Bob Jones hit the center of the line on a quick-opening play, eluded the secondary and sprinted 53 yards for the clincher.

Harry Dowda catches pass from Tom Fetzer to set up Deacon touchdown.

Boston Stops W. F., 26-9

by Tom Bost, Jr.

Wake Forest News Bureau Director

Boston, Mass., Sept. 24: Boston College combined a versatile and deceptive offense with a firm and sound defense to turn back Wake Forest 26 to 9 here tonight before a partisan crowd of 27,000 fans.

It was a much closer game than the score would seem to indicate. In fact, had it not been for a couple of fumbles and a pass that dropped in the end zone, the Deacons might easily have had three more touchdowns. But the "ifs" didn't materialize, and the Eagles gained a well-earned victory over a club which scrapped furiously all the way.

Even when the Eagles were ahead 26-0 midway of the third quarter the Deacons were still fighting courageously, and they finally hit pay dirt after thrice marching within B. C.'s 30-yard line.

The lone Baptist touchdown came when Bill Gregus drove over left guard into the end zone after Carroll Blackerby had set up the touchdown with passes to Jim Duncan and Red O'Quinn. The Deacons had tallied on a safety a couple of minutes earlier when O'Quinn and Bill George tackled Ed Songin behind his own goal line.

Tackles Bill George, Tom Palmer and Bernie Hanula and Guard Ray Cicis performed best for the Deacons on defense. Halfbacks Bill Gregus and Harry Dowda and Fullback Bud Lail led the ground attack which proved very effective in spots.

Bill George hoots another perfect placement in the final quarter of the game with George Washington, for his third extra point of the afternoon.

Tom Fetzer, who finished in top ten in country in punting, gets off long punt.

Wake Upsets W. & M. 21-12

by ABE GOLDBLATT
Ledger-Dispatch Staff Writer

Williamsburg, Va., Oct. 2: Wake Forest's smart Demon Deacons staged their "T" party on the William and Mary reservation here today and spanked the Indians, 21-12, in a Southern Conference upset before 17,000 fans.

The strong, eager Wake Forest line maneuvered skillfully to outplay the favored Tribe, and once in the second period, with the deacons leading by 7-6, stopped a William and Mary touchdown march on the one-yard line. That was the turning point. From then on the black-shirted men of Peahen Walker were unbeatable.

Bill Gregus scored first for the Deacons after Ed Bradley had set up the touchdown by recovering a fumble on the Tribe's 18-yard line.

William and Mary bounced back with a touchdown pass good for 62 yards from Tommy Korczowski to Jack Bruce. However, Buddy Lex missed the try for the extra point and Wake Forest led 7-6.

Tom Fetzer completed a touchdown pass to Ed Hoey to give the Deacons a 14-6 lead in the third quarter, and then the Baptists sewed it up with another touchdown toss, this time from Carroll Blackerby to John O'Quinn after a 66-yard march.

Lex passed to end George Heflin for the final eight yards after a 63-yard touchdown drive for the Indians' last six-pointer.

Deacs Lose to Carolina, 28-6by DICK HERBERT
News and Observer Sports Editor

Wake Forest, N. C., Oct. 9: Charlie Justice and Horsa Rodgers, two great backs spearheading a powerful and resourceful football machine, today provided the spark and the blasting power as Carolina outmatched Wake Forest 28-6, in a contest closer than the score would indicate.

A record crowd of 27,000 bi-partisan spectators overflowed Groves stadium to see the Tar Heels open their quest for the Southern Conference championship, and all the onlookers were treated to a dazzling show of offensive fireworks.

Carolina struck early and took a 14-0 lead in the first quarter, but the determined Wake Forest huskies refused to collapse. They battled back to make it a real contest, forcing the Tar Heels to call upon all of their weapons to remain in front. The Deacons held an edge in the second period and dominated the third, during which they engineered an impressive 78-yard touchdown march which narrowed the Tar Heels' margin to 14-6.

Wake Forest got to the Carolina 11-yard line just two minutes later, and the fans sensed a possible rally which would make it close all the way. The Deacs gave the Carolina defense a much harder day than it had experienced in the wins over Texas and Georgia, but only once could they cross the goal—on a 17-yard pass from Gregus to O'Quinn.

W. F. Tops Duquesne, 41-15

by BILL HENSEY

Old Gold and Black Sports Editor

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 16: A fighting band of Deacons displayed an excellent aerial and running offense here tonight as Wake Forest swamped Duquesne University 41-15 in one of the wildest scoring games ever viewed at Forbes Field. A total of 35 points were scored in the first quarter, almost before the fans had seated themselves comfortably.

The Deacons scored the first time they got their hands on the ball, when Bob Jones intercepted a Bluffite pass on his own 28. A pass from Fetzer to O'Quinn gained 48 yards to the Duquesne 1, and Bill Gregus plunged over for the touchdown.

After recovering a Duquesne fumble on the 30, Fetzer passed 30 yards to Ed Bradley in the end zone for the second Baptist tally. The Dukes scored in the first period on a safety, a 48-yard run, and a pass play that covered 79 yards.

Wake Forest marched 69 yards for a third six-pointer. Gregus swept end for 29 yards and the score. The Deacons widened the margin midway of the second period, climaxing a 79-yard drive with Fetzer's 11-yard pass to Sprock in the end zone.

After the intermission, the visiting Baptists accounted for two more touchdowns, which came on passes by Fetzer and Blackerby to ends Duncan and O'Quinn. The Deacons tallied once more in the final quarter, but the play was nullified by a penalty.

Baptists Blast Wolfpack, 34-13

by BILL McILWAIN
Special News Correspondent

Wake Forest, N. C., Oct. 30: A person not discussing football in this village today was as out of place as Greta Garbo in a New York Yankee uniform.

Wake Forest had beaten N. C. State 34-13, and you either talked about football or you didn't talk. Even academic activities were geared for football: English professors were urging students to say "We surely played well," rather than "We sho' kicked hell outta them Wolves." And the history department was checking past records, finding that Wake's five-touchdown margin was the largest between the two clubs since Wake won, 54-6, in 1943.

Halfback Harry Dowda, playing what Coach Peahen Walker described as "the best game he's ever played for us," was brilliant. He smacked over for the first score and picked up 93 yards in 14 carries. As a ground-gobbling mate he had Bill Gregus, who bulled his way for 73 yards in 14 tries. This pair of halfbacks contributed virtually all of the Deacs' running punch, but in the air there were other big Baptists. End John O'Quinn, the nation's number one pass receiver, hoisted his grab total to 25 for the season. He pulled in five passes—two of them for touchdowns—for 118 yards. One of his scores was on a 41-yard pitch from Gregus and the other came on a 58-yard strike from Blackerby.

W. F. Cops Duke Thriller 27-20

by JACK HORNER

Morning Herald Sports Editor

Durham, N. C., Nov. 6: In one of the greatest offensive battles ever seen in Duke Stadium, Wake Forest's slightly favored Demon Deacons lived up to expectations by squeezing out a spine-tingling 27-20 victory over Duke's Blue Devils before 20,000 wildly cheering fans here this afternoon.

Wake Forest turned a Duke fumble into a touchdown less than three minutes from the game's end to break a 20-20 tie and climax a spectacular display of football fireworks.

Bill Gregus got the first touchdown for the Deacs, but the Blue Devils scored two quick ones and led 13-7 in the second quarter. The Deacons made it 13-13 just before the half, however, with an end zone pass from Blackerby to Duncan.

The Deacs went out in front, 20-13, when Blackerby threw to John (Red) O'Quinn for another touchdown in a play covering 52 yards.

Then Duke sprang Wingback Jack Friedlund on an electrifying 82-yard touchdown dash from a T-formation which Wade had never used before. Bill Gregus carried the following Duke kickoff 77 yards, but the Blue Devils took the ball over on downs on their own six, only to lose it on the first play from scrimmage, as Bob Jones recovered a fumble on the 10. On the first play, Mike Srock circled right end for Wake Forest's winning touchdown.

Bill Gregus makes 77-yard kickoff return to set up winning touchdown against Duke. This 77 yards helped make him top kickoff returner in nation.

Clemson Edges Wake, 21-14

by FRANK SPENCER
Journal-Sentinel Sports Editor

Winston-Salem, N. C., Nov. 14: Clemson College's snarling Tigers, unbeaten, untied and bowl-bound, clawed out their seventh straight triumph and moved right into the front door of the Southern Conference championship house by stopping Wake Forest's powerful Demon Deacons in a thrilling football game at Bowman Gray Stadium yesterday, 21-14.

A crowd of 20,000 spectators, largest ever to witness an athletic contest in Northwest North Carolina, jammed into the stadium to watch the Bengals from South Carolina twice forge into the lead only to have the battling Deacons surge back to tie up the score each time.

Then the Tigers moved 47 yards by land and by air for the winning touchdown. Even then, with the seconds ticking away, Wake Forest fought back, stabbing deep into Tiger territory, only to have its vaunted passing attack bog down.

Wake Forest tied up the game in the second quarter when Ed Baublis recovered Bobby Williams' fumble and Bill Gregus carried the ball over on fourth down.

The Deacons showed a display of real ground power in the third period when they took the kickoff and traveled 110 yards to score. Mike Sprock tore in behind the effective blocking of Gregus and circled right end for the final 10 yards.

Mike Sprock dives out of reach of Clemson Tiger as Deacs display ground power.

Deacons Stomp Gamecocks, 38-0

by JAKE PENLAND
Sports Editor, The State

Columbia, S. C., Nov. 26: South Carolina's football Gamecocks closed out a dismal 1948 season yesterday afternoon at the Fair Grounds Stadium with a 38 to 0 loss to Peabody Walker's Wake Forest Demon Deacons, who picked up some prestige for their January 1 appearance in the Dixie Bowl at Birmingham. The crowd was about 18,000.

The Deacons scored regularly with a superior offensive which included a nice variety of running plays and passes. The line was fast and sure in its offensive assignments and an array of talented backs found the going easy most of the way.

The Gamecocks put on one impressive offensive that carried to the Wake three, but the Deacons dug in and held the Birds back with a defensive stand that took a lot of pep out of the home club.

Gregus scored the first Wake TD from the one yard line. John O'Quinn got the next two—one on a pass from Carroll Blackerby and the other when he blocked a kick and recovered the ball on the goal line. Wake Forest led 19-0 at the half.

Gregus picked up his second six-pointer when he scored from the three on fourth down. Bobby Jones' pass interception and long runback set up the next Deacon touchdown, with Mike Sprock going over from the three. Fetzer's pass to Pollicci was complete over the goal for the sixth touchdown.

Gregus pulls away from would-be State tackler as he sweeps left end.

Baylor Holds Wake for 20-7 Win in Dixie Bowl

Dowda isn't throwing it, he just caught a short pass from Blackerby.

by the Associated Press

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 1 - AP The Baylor Bears grabbed a big first half lead and held on grimly in the final periods today to defeat Wake Forest, 20 to 7, in the second annual Dixie Bowl.

The victors were much superior for the first two periods, but were pushed around in the closing moments. About 20,000 chilled fans saw the game.

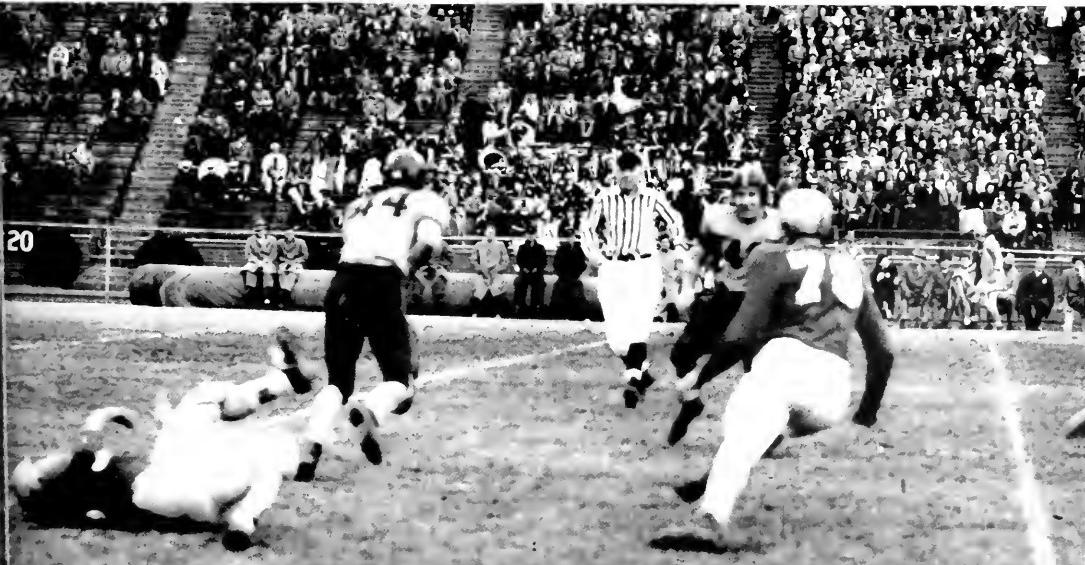

Sammy Pierce, Jerry Mangum and Harold Riley gave the Bears a 20-0 advantage at halftime.

The Wake Forest Deacons rallied strongly after the intermission. They scored midway of the third period when Tom Fetzer's punt bounced crazily and hit George Sims, star Baylor left half, as he tried to run away from it. James Lail recovered for Wake Forest on the 13. Mike Sprock went over on third down, and Bill George converted.

That was all the scoring, but far from all the action. Wake Forest fought well into Baylor territory twice in the last quarter and netted nine first downs to two for the victors.

The first march ended on the Baylor 36 when a short pass from Carroll Blackerby was dropped and recovered by Jack Southern. The second drive earned to the 15, but Bob Griffin broke it up by intercepting a Blackerby pass in his end zone.

Harry Dowda winds up with ball on double reverse and escapes from fallen foe, as Bud Lail swings in to take out Tinsley (#8), Baylor Co-Captain.

"Take that man out!" Nub Smith scores touchdown in game with N. C. State.

One of the finest freshman football teams ever to represent Wake Forest College ran up an impressive string of four victories against a lone one-point defeat during the 1948 gridiron campaign.

No less than 27 of the 38 members of the squad won some type of post-season honor, such as all-district or all-state, while in high school.

The Deacons opened their five-game schedule by crushing the Duke Blue Imps, 34-7, followed this with an impressive 19-7 victory over State's Wolflets, lost a 14-13 decision to North Carolina's Tar Babies in the final quarter, and quickly bounced back to play their best game of the year in stomping the South Carolina Biddies, 27-7.

The Baby Deacs encountered their stiffest opposition in the final game against William and Mary's Papposes. Virginia's outstanding freshman club, but they came from behind to close out a very good season with an 18-14 triumph.

Few events in the school year at Wake Forest are more colorful than the football games. Excitement runs high, as thousands of people converge on the tiny village like swarming bees. These are some of the sidelights which added color to this year's games.

When Coach Murray Greason issued the first call for basketball prospects back in November, things didn't look very bright for the 1948-49 season. The Deacons would be minus the services of their two top scorers of the previous season, towering Deran Walters and All-Southern Jack Gentry.

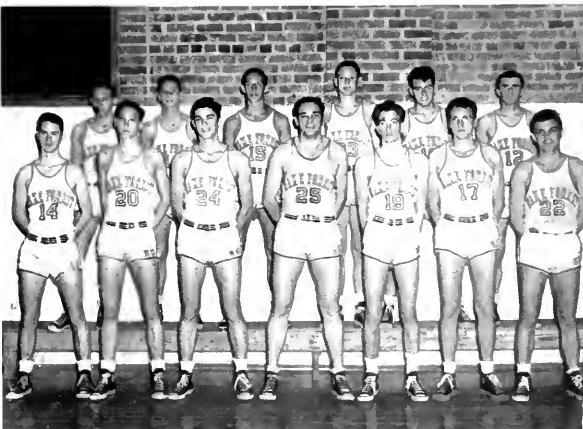

The outlook grew even darker as the season progressed, and John "Red" O'Quinn's decision to confine his athletic talents to football, coupled with a Southern Conference ruling declaring Willard Kaylor ineligible, seemed to rule out completely any hopes for a winning Wake Forest ball club.

But the Deacons have never been ones to sit on the mourners' bench, and their determination to win games that they were never supposed to win led them straight into their second consecutive Southern Conference basketball tournament.

The first test of the season was provided by the semi-pro McCrary Eagles in Asheboro. The game was a see-saw battle all the way, with McCrary taking a 63-62 lead when only 15 seconds remained to be played. Little Buck Geary dropped in a long set shot to put the Deacons back in front and secure their first victory of the season, 64-63.

The Deacs chalked up victory number two the following week in a high scoring game against the Marines of Camp Lejeune. Clifford "Boo" Corey, six-foot seven-inch freshman center, virtually controlled both backboards to aid in the 80-66 win.

The Southern Conference opener saw the Tigers of Clemson go down to a 58-50 defeat before the Deacons in Gore Gymnasium. The game was unusually slow, and at halftime the Baptists were only one point ahead, 20-19. With the score tied at 48-48, Alton "Tunney" Brooks got hot and dropped in three quick field goals to break up the game.

The Duquesne University Hilltoppers handed the Deacs their first defeat of the season, a 61-35 lacing in Pittsburgh, and West Virginia turned the trick the next night in Morgantown, W. Va., 62-49.

The Baptists were seeking revenge for the defeat William and Mary had handed them in the 1948 conference tournament when they traveled to Norfolk to meet the Indians, but fate and a guy named Chet Giermak were against them. Giermak tossed in 19 points for William and Mary that night, leading his team to a 52-47 victory. "Boo" Corey was lost to the squad temporarily when he had to be removed from the game with a fractured wrist.

After the Christmas holidays, the Deacons dropped a close 55-48 decision to a potent semi-pro Hanes Hosiery five in a New Year's night game.

The Deacs got back on the winning side of the ledger the following night, however, and took a 63-59 thriller from the Chatham Blanketeers in Elkin. Buck Geary stole the ball and sank a field goal to break a 59-59 deadlock with less than a minute to play. Jim Caulfield quickly added another two points, and the Baptists had won again.

An inter-sectional clash with the Volunteers of the University of Tennessee in Knoxville was just as unsuccessful as other non-family games had been. The last half proved to be the margin of defeat for Wake Forest, as the Vols began to pull away from their slim 31-28 halftime advantage. The Deacs could do little to stop Paul Walther, and the Vol Captain went on a personal scoring spree to sink 13 field goals and five free throws for a total of 31 points. The 70-51 loss was the fifth of the season for the Baptists.

On their return trip the Deacs stopped off in Asheville long enough to hand a sound thrashing to the American Enka Rayonites, 65-44. The victory was a costly one, however, for "Tunney" Brooks had to leave the game when an old knee injury became aggravated. The injury greatly hampered Brooks for the remainder of the year.

The Demon Deacons administered the first of their three major upsets of the season on January 8 when they trounced a heavily favored George Washington quintet 50-38. The score was either tied or changed hands 15 times during the first half, which ended with the Deacons in front 25-22. The Baptists pulled away handily in the second half, however, to gain their second conference win in three attempts.

The Southern Conference battle was on in earnest now, and the Deacs were next host to a scrappy but outmanned band of Richmond Spiders. For a while it looked as if the Deacs were going to turn the game into a rout, but the never-say-die Spiders battled right down to the final gun, and the victors had to settle for a twelve-point 63-51 triumph. The injury jinx raised its head again, and Jack Mueller suffered a badly sprained ankle.

Two nights later, Gore Gymnasium was the scene of a heart-breaking 55-50 defeat handed the Deacs by North Carolina's White Phantoms. The Deacons outplayed the Phantoms throughout most of the contest and held an impressive 31-23 lead at halftime. Carolina caught fire in the final minutes of the game, however, and overcame the Wake Forest advantage. Dan Nyimicz's long set shot put the Phantoms in the lead to stay, despite a constant effort by the Deacs to regain the initiative.

The Deacons immediately embarked on an invasion of South Carolina, where they met the University of South Carolina Gamecocks and the Clemson Tigers on successive nights. Both Palmetto squads defeated the Deacs, who were playing their fourth and fifth games in only eight days. The Gamecocks defeated the Baptists handily, 66-45, but the Tigers had to come from behind to take a 59-57 decision from the weary Deacs.

A conference ruling which declared Willard Kaylor ineligible for further varsity competition took another valuable man out of action. Kaylor was the team's leading scorer, and his loss was a severe blow to a squad that had almost been forced to hold practice sessions in the college infirmary. Even a crippled squad was too much for a hapless Citadel quintet, however, and the Demon Deacons took a one-sided 57-36 victory over the Cadets.

An eight-year domination by the Duke Blue Devils came to an end in Gore Gymnasium on January 28, when the Deacs turned back the Big Blue 52-50. A fired-up Deacon squad completely out-scrapped their arch-rivals from Durham for the full forty minutes to snap the string of losses to Duke at 13.

The Deacons, who were supposed to have played their game of the year against Duke the previous week, next played host to a haughty Wolfpack from N. C. State and turned in what was undoubtedly their best performance of the season by defeating the "Hoosier Hotshots" 52-49. The State eagles, who had not been defeated by a Southern Conference opponent since Wake Forest turned the trick back in 1947, could do little to stop the onslaught of the Deacons. The red-shirted Wolfpack trailed all through the contest except once when Sammy Ranzino dropped in a long one to knot the count at 48-48. The Battling Baptists would not be denied, however, and John Chiappy, who had just recently become eligible, made good on a one-hander to put the Deacs out front for good. Little Buck Geary played a brilliant game, hitting on long set shots time after time to lead the individual scoring for both teams with 17 points. When the final gun sounded, ending State's Southern Conference victory string at 27 straight games, Coach Greason was hoisted to the shoulders of his happy players. The "giant killers" of Wake Forest had done it again!

A second trip above the Mason-Dixon line was just as unsuccessful as the first had been, and the Deacons went down to a 57-47 defeat before the Temple Owls in Philadelphia's Convention Hall. It was the seventh loss for the Deacons in 19 starts.

An angered State Wolfpack, determined to avenge their earlier loss to the Deacons, showed no mercy in trouncing the boys from Baptist Hollow, 82-39. They took an early lead that never was seriously threatened and went on to an easy victory.

Carolina's White Phantoms defeated Wake Forest for the second time, 69-54, over in Chapel Hill. The Deacs took 97 shots from the floor that night, but only a small percentage found the mark.

The team dropped its fourth straight game when Duke's Blue Devils came from behind to gain a 61-51 victory and revenge for their previous defeat at the hands of the Deacons. Wake Forest held a seven-point 26-19 lead at the half, but the Blue Devils started hitting in the final stanza to rack up 42 points and win the game.

The Deacs' conference record was 6-7 when Furman's quintet came to Wake Forest for the last game of the season, and the Baptists had to win that game in order to qualify for the conference tournament. Furman threw a real scare into the Deacs, and it was not until the very end of the game that the boys from South Carolina wilted and gave a 67-55 victory and a berth in the tournament to Wake Forest.

The defending Southern Conference champions from N. C. State were the Deacons' opening round opponent in the tournament. The two teams battled on even terms for a while, but State gradually pulled away from the Deacs to win, 64-42.

The 1948-49 basketball season at Wake Forest could hardly be recorded as anything other than successful. True, the team lost 12 games, but listed among the 11 victories are triumphs over State and Duke. These two victories more than make up for the games that the team lost, and even the other nine wins seem small in comparison. All of the boys who finished the season will be back again next fall, and hopes are running high for a good year. But no matter what happens in the future, the victories over State and Duke will long be remembered here in Baptist Hollow.

Baseball

Frank Novosel replaced overworked Murray Greason as head baseball coach in 1948 and piloted the strong Wake Forest diamond aggregation to one of its best seasons in a decade.

The 1948 Deacs won 16 out of 23 games and finished in second place in the Big Four League. Charlie Teague took the loop batting crown and Vernon Mustian was the top hurler.

1949 saw hefty, genial, ex-major leaguer Lee Gooch leave a 20-year baseball retirement to serve as coach. Old timers said that this was to be the Deacs' year. Except for two players, the strong '48 club was back intact, with several able newcomers.

The Deacons started off with a bang, winning the first seven games—Randolph-Macon, Washington and Lee, Cornell, Lumberton—before the student body returned from spring holidays. They took Burlington, Duke, Fayetteville, Greenville, Lumberton, N. C. State, and Greensboro, and then were supposed to have been stopped by Carolina—only to take their first of four wins over the Tar Heels, 6-5.

The Deacs kept winning—Duke, State, Carolina, McCrary Eagles—and then downed Carolina again, 4-2, for their 20th consecutive victory, a new state and conference record.

Whiteville's Comets broke the streak at 20 by edging the Deacs, 1-0. Duke was mauled the following day, but State handed the team their first collegiate loss, 7-5, the next night.

The loss to State was the last setback for the regular season, as the powerful Deacon nine swept through all remaining opposition and took the Big Four title late in May, following it up a week later with Wake Forest's first Southern Conference crown.

The doughty Deacons accepted a bid to compete in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's national championship playoffs and then went on a barnstorming tour of the state. They entered the NCAA District III playoffs as favorites over Richmond, Kentucky and Mississippi State.

Opening against Kentucky, Wake Forest blasted out five runs in the seventh and eighth innings to cop the first game, 5-3. The Deacons again came from behind the next night to edge Mississippi State in the 12th inning, 4-3. In the finals Moe Bauer allowed Kentucky only four hits as the Baptists lashed out an easy 8-0 triumph. Charlie Teague was named the most valuable player of the series.

Gene Hooks scores the winning run against Southern California in the twelfth inning of the national championship semi-finals at Wichita, Kansas, after Charlie Teague's triple. Joe Fulghum, with bats, and Wiley Warren, behind Fulghum, whoop it up for the victorious Deacs.

Wake Forest then invaded the North and took on the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame for the Region II title. The cock-sure Irish had already bought railroad tickets to the NCAA finals at Wichita, but it was the unheralded Deacons who boarded the train for Kansas, after crushing the mighty Irish in two decisive 4-1, 10-7 victories. Teague again was chosen most valuable player in the series.

St. John's of Brooklyn, Texas, and the defending champions of Southern California were in the national finals with Wake Forest, and the Deacs drew the champion Trojans in the first round. Harry Nicholas yielded only one run and scored the winning marker in the 10th inning on Gene Hooks' double, to give the Deacons a 2-1 upset victory.

In the second round game Texas pounced on Wake Forest early and the Deacons were never able to get rolling as they took an 8-1 drubbing.

In the last game with Southern California Wake Forest again came from behind to tie the score and win in extra innings. Dick Vander Clute granted only six scattered hits, and in the last of the 12th Teague blasted a long triple to score Hooks from first for a thrilling 2-1 triumph.

The powerful and rested Texans unleashed their terrific batting attack against the tired Wake Forest hurlers in the championship game. The Deacons fell behind again after tying the score in the fourth inning and were never able to catch up as they suffered a 10-3 defeat.

Gooch and Mustian protest reversed decision in Wichita opener. Hooks scores to tie Southern California at 1-1 in sixth inning. Teammates congratulate pitcher Nicholas after initial victory. Hooks slides into third in last game with Southern California. Gooch embraces pitcher Vander Clute after 2-1 semi-finals win.

GENE HOOKS

Here are the first athletes to become All-Americans while playing for Wake Forest. Charlie Teague, second baseman, and Gene Hooks, third baseman, were named to the first all-American baseball team selected this year by the American Association of College Baseball Coaches. Pitcher Dick Vander Clute was chosen for the second team. Teague, who hit .353, was voted most valuable player in two NCAA tournaments and most popular player in a third. Hooks, with an average of .359, hit an amazing .487 in tournament play.

Russ Batchelor and Gene Hooks wave happily to cheering throng which is on hand to meet the team at the Raleigh-Durham airport.

Unquestionably the greatest baseball team in Wake Forest and Southern Conference history, this year's Deacon nine won 38 games and lost only six, racking up a team batting average of .300 for the season and hitting 19 home runs, 20 three-baggers, 42 two-baggers and 268 singles. They took four of the seven trophies given at the national tournament: national runner-up, team sportsmanship, individual sportsmanship (awarded to Russ Batchelor), and most popular player (won by Charlie Teague). And three players made the All-American team.

Mustian, Teague and Batchelor sit on bus at airport with trophies.

John Hammack, McNeill Watkins, "Buck" Bunn, Tinker Williams, Carey Mumford and Walter Morphis topped the heavy list of candidates for the team.

Johnny Johnston's golfers made history in 1948. They won 12 matches and lost only one, and were the runners-up in the conference tournament. The team beat Duke on their own home course; no other team had done that in 11 years. And Arnold Palmer was individual conference champion.

Playing much stiffer competition in 1949, the linksmen still dropped only two matches and lost the conference team championship by only one stroke. The team also represented the area in the NCAA championship tournament at Ames, Iowa, where Palmer, conference champion for the second consecutive year, took medalist honors.

Cheerleaders and Pep Rallies

Betty Isbell and Jerry Green get big cheer going as team comes on field before a game.

Much of the school spirit shown by Wake Forest students at intercollegiate athletic contests can be traced to the enthusiasm of the twelve cheerleaders whose pictures appear on this page. Led by Johnny Gardner and by Ray Jones, who took over second semester, they were chosen by the Intramural Athletic Council from the many candidates who appeared for tryouts early in September. They planned and supervised all pep rallies, sparked the student cheering section at football and basketball games, and worked out several popular new yells.

Intramurals

The intramural athletics program, headed by Professor Jim Long and Student Manager Jack Overman, provided all men students with opportunities throughout the year for recreation, sportsmanship and competition. The program was under the jurisdiction of the Physical Education Department of the college, but it was governed by a council composed of the sports editor of Old Gold and Black, the head cheerleader, and representatives from the Student Council and the Monogram Club.

Twenty-nine teams participated in the program. Winners in the five team sports received rotating trophies, and a grand championship trophy went to the outstanding team, Sigma Phi Epsilon. Medals were awarded to winners in individual sports.

For the first time, the Physical Education Department sponsored this year an extensive program of co-recreational activities. Virtually all upper division physical education courses were open both to men and to women, including courses which involved several types of sport activity. Men and women often worked together in handicraft labs. Members of one class in the construction of physical education programs presented a "circus," in which they themselves were the lions, horses, elephants, jugglers, and other entertainers, as an example of a suitable activity for a large group of children.

In response to student demand, the department also held several co-recreational events of an extra-curricular nature, the most popular of which was a badminton tournament.

Women's Sports

The intramural sports program for co-eds was under the direction of the two-year-old Women's Recreation Association, which operated under the jurisdiction of the college Physical Education Department. Miss Marjorie Crisp, Director of Physical Education for Women, served as faculty adviser to this organization. Most of the work of the association was carried on by the Executive Council, which consisted of the six officers of the group, the managers of any sports which were in season, and Miss Crisp.

Co-eds who participated in the program were divided into four teams during Freshman Orientation Week. These teams—the Alpha Stellas, the Blue Deaconettes, the Ata Tata Pi's and the Magnolia Blossoms—have been organized as permanent groups, with each girl remaining on the team to which she was originally assigned as long as she takes part in the program.

Awards for achievement were made to individuals, however, rather than to teams. A scoring system was established which awarded a specified number of points for participation in each of the various organized activities. All girls acquiring one hundred or more points were entitled to wear official blazer jackets.

The knowledge acquired by the girls who participated in this program proved invaluable in the planning of the May Day Pageant, and many of the girls were given featured roles in the pageant.

SOCIAL LIFE

Social life at Wake Forest took many forms in 1948 and 1949. In addition to the everyday social activities of the individual students—cokes at the bookstore, ping-pong and piano playing in the rec room, bridge games, dates, afternoon movies, and bull sessions in dormitory rooms, to mention a few—there was a multitude of organized social events. These events were so numerous and so varied in nature that any attempt to include all of them in this record would be out of the question. Almost every organization on the campus sponsored some social functions during the course of the year, and quite a few groups were essentially social in nature, devoting most of their time and effort to fostering the social life of their respective members. The following thirty-six pages contain a representative sampling of the parties, receptions, banquets, dances, socials, picnics, teas and smokers which came in rapid succession throughout the school term.

This year there were three primary sources of organized social activity on the Wake Forest campus. Each sponsored a program designed to meet the social requirements of a special group, but in many cases all interested students were invited to participate.

The most far-reaching program was that offered by the social fraternities. Besides providing year-round living quarters for their members, they held a steady succession of meetings, smokers, parties, dances and other social events.

The BSU and its subsidiary organizations provided the most extensive social program to be found outside fraternity circles. This program, which included parties, socials, receptions, teas and picnics, was usually open to the entire student body. Co-ed-sponsored social events were planned by a special committee of the Women's Government Association.

The social activities of these and other groups, such as the literary societies, the National Guard unit, the publications, the Gator Club and the Square and Compasses Club, constitute the subject matter of this fourth book of the 1949 Howler.

The first section of the book records the activities of the ten social fraternities and the Inter-Fraternity Council and tells the story of fraternity pledging. The second section introduces the fraternity sponsors and the members of the May Court and shows some of the behind-the-scenes activities of those who took part in the May Day Pageant and the other events of the Magnolia Festival. The final section presents other social organizations, depicts representative social activities of both fraternity and non-fraternity groups, and illustrates the planning which lies behind several typical social events.

JOHN PERSON

*Faculty Advisor

Years from now the members of Alpha Sigma Phi will look back and recall the days when John Person, Tom Austin, Charlie Carroll and John Byers officiated them through a successful year at Wake Forest. 1948-49 was the year they won third place in football, took second place in the Homecoming decoration contest, and walked off with the fraternity and campus basketball championships.

The brothers can now laugh off the trials and tribulations they went through buying wedding presents for all the members who were married. While Gus and his boys almost turned the frat into a glee club, the brains like Mack Parrish and Jim Getzen made Phi Beta Kappa. No one could possibly forget the Apache party and the growing of sideburns, mustaches and beards. The alumni banquet was quite a success; about three people showed up.

Paul Livick was always talking on the phone, Snake Byers won short story prizes with consistency, and the big wheels like Johnny Dillon, Bill Hensley and Jim Getzen made ODK. Jim Duncan imitated Jack Gillem's Walk, Woody and Mel tried to run WPTF out of business in '49, and Dr. Smith, Dr. Rogers and Dr. Powers became Alpha Sigs.

Charlie Carroll went around trying to collect the dues, while Shep Hamrick made all the money on the campus. Ben Richardson still wanted the dance assessment to be 39 cents per man, but money was no problem to most brothers—they never had any.

The favorite pastime was pinochle in the chapter room. Wendy griped about feet on the furniture but Bubbles never paid any attention. Ping-pong games and cigarette butts took over the penthouse, and Dick Frye took over the wallets.

Yes, 1949 will long be remembered by all the brothers. That's the year Sankey graduated.

"You bunch of Delta Sigs come to order!" With these words, attention turns from John "Red" O'Quinn, Delta Sig omnipotent, to "Donkle" Paschal, newly-elected president. First-semester President O'Quinn, who is a member of Who's Who and ODK, an All-Southern end, and the leading pass receiver in the nation, has been discussing a football maneuver with Bill Gregus and Mike Sprock, star backs on the Deacon squad. Bernie Hanula, Ray Cicia, Boyd Allen, Bill Dye and Gene Pambianchi, standing close by, now look for a place to sit down. As the officers take their positions for opening ceremonies, Vice-President "Pinky" Funderburk opens a window to clear away the smoke of 43 cigars.

"Honest Ed" McIlwain, co-author of Legends of Baptist Hollow, drops in a chair, still groggy from an all-night session in the Student office. Brownie Wallace takes the floor and recalls a few scenes from the big Hoho party: "That was the seediest bunch of bums I've ever seen." Willys Hooper was awarded top beard honors for his magnificent crop of red brush, while Verne Shive and Dot Wilson proved to be the "raunchiest couple" present. Frank Armstrong won hands down for the scrappiest beard, and Don Lee Paschal was a natural for "King of the Hohoes." (See page 271.)

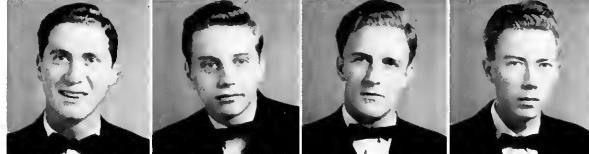

Johnny Birchett, pale and slightly green, gets up and leaves the room hurriedly, his cigar half-smoked and at arm's length. He mumbles something to the effect that cruising along at 40,000 feet never got him like this. As the pounding gavel signals the beginning of the meeting, "Rooster" Folger is heard talking about "the miracle of the Delta Sig house." It seems that the first floor now houses a rather large dining hall, six married couples, three children, and one prize canine.

Preliminaries to the KA "Old South Ball" were many and varied, but perhaps the most unique was that enacted by Pledge Dickie "Robert E. Lee" Davis. Brandishing the sword of his counterpart, General Davis stepped to the center of U. S. Highway 1 and calmly stopped a car bearing a New Jersey license plate. The gasp of astonishment at his harsh cry of "Halt, Yankee!" was never noticed by the jubilant "rebel."

The Old South Ball was a gala occasion for all members of the Kappa Alpha order in this area. The affair was complete with sideburns, secession, parade and banquet, while dress was strictly in accordance with the fashion of the "Old South" (see page 271). Kappa Alpha's social season was rounded out for the year with receptions after football games, parties at Josh Turnage's and Upchurch's Cabin, and inter-fraternity dances.

Thoughts of the year 1948-49 will always bring memories to KA's of the bumper wheat harvest in the front yard, the laying of a new rug, the 1.8 scholarship average they racked up for the first semester, the maladies of Brothers Hooks and Minton, the day Strick Dowding bought a new pair of socks, the "criticism meetings," Brother Sherrill's roulette wheel, the good order maintained by Commissioner Stanback and "Lush" Martin, Dave Clark's "Frap! You son-of-a-luck!", the Ed and Shaky Concessions, Inc., the sulfur burning and spreading of buturic acid, the third floor band which held rehearsals on the second floor, the athletic feats of Brothers Hooks, Fetzer, Davis, King, Bennett, Hough, Burden and Holt, the independent clique, the celebration after Brother Caudle was elected student body president, and, last but not least, the opening of Lloyd Bailey's new medical school for men with a 1.1 average.

"Scrumptif!" With a dull thud, Syd Stealy sailed right through the sheetrock ceiling of the new third floor chapter room at the Kappa Sig house. The ceiling was damaged more than his head, however, and Bill Castellow, who had supervised the building of the new room, moaned that this tossing of new members in blankets would have to cease. Castellow, of kumquat sandwich fame, hadn't been too easy on the house himself, what with his daily knife-throwing practice, but it was during Christmas holidays that the biggest blow fell. Water from broken pipes flooded the entire ground floor, and "Tunney" Brooks, who was on the campus for basketball practice, dug drainage ditches around the house instead of turning the water off. Despite these and other obstacles, such as the sudden disappearance of the wire screening they had bought for the back porch, the boys succeeded in refurbishing completely the interior of the house.

Man of the hour on weekends was the fabulous Frog Augst, the guy with the lucky hat and the cowbell, who put on a one-man fence straddling act in Charlotte. Funderburk stole Frog's thunder the weekend of the Carolina football game, however, when he came crashing down the stairway like a Sherman tank. Tom Gibson created a sensation at parties with his "Georgia organ," and "Map-eyes" Nye grabbed the limelight on mornings after with his vivid diagrams of Wake County.

Preacher Mustian and Sambo Batchelor stood out as co-captains of the varsity baseball team, and Poochie Ferris will long be remembered for his conscientious service as volleyball manager.

Ken Reynolds, who succeeded Don Joyce as president, received the annual "Man of the Year" award — a beautifully engraved silver clipboard.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

O. K. WHITTINGTON

Bang! With a loud motor roar and O. K. Whittington under the wheel, the Lambda Chi bandwagon got under way on its 1948-49 journey. Doing the back-seat driving were Vice-President J. B. Scott, Treasurer Gene Parks, and "Scribbler" Emory Sneeden. Faculty Adviser "Pop" Carroll calmly unfolded the road map and laid out the route.

Later in October the fraternity welcomed aboard new pledges "Poli" Barefoot, Jack Lovelace, Carroll Shoemaker, Bill Simms, Lewis Barnes, Wade Gallant and Sam Groves.

Shortly thereafter the chapter room at the front of the frat's "Little Dorm" home was given a thorough going-over, under the self-styled leadership of numerous "PU's" in architecture. After several days of frantic scrambling, the room emerged miraculously with a complete new look.

By this time cold weather was approaching, but John "Jelly-Belly" Burney, Lambda Chi Fuller brush man, was ready. He took out his case and began to praise his wares, and, with his high pressure methods, he soon equipped every hobo in the vicinity of Wake Forest with dyed silk guano sacks in the dead of winter.

The year's social activities got off to a bang-up start with a party at Perry's cabin. Everyone who attended the affair got thoroughly soaked—by a torrential downpour of rain. A banquet given during the weekend of Mid Winters highlighted a series of parties held in conjunction with the four I. F. C. dances. The biggest social event of the year, however, was the Lambda Chi Alpha Founder's Day Dance, at the Hope Valley Country Club in Durham. The fraternity's plans for the summer include a beach party at the Barefoot cottage at Wrightsville.

This year found everything from a Deacon to a Dream Boy in the ranks of Pi Kappa Alpha. The Deacon was Ed Stanfield, whose antics provided color for football throngs, and the Dream Boy was Clyde "Fish" Potter, who made his debut on Sadie Hawkins Day. No less fatal to the fairer sex was Ryan Shelton, famed for the amazing regularity of his wooing, winning and withdrawing. Sam Behrends, Robert Bell and Lewis Lee burned up the road to Greensboro every weekend, but Jennings Agner claims the honor of receiving the sweetest "sugar report"—a Valentine from his Indiana heartthrob, covered with granulated sugar.

The PiKA football team, coached by basketball player Jim Patton, bowled over ten opponents to capture the Campus Championship. Carroll Blackerby and Lou Pollacci romped to glory on the varsity gridiron, and Willard Kaylor developed into the most controversial figure in Big Four basketball when his eligibility was brought to an abrupt end. Sonny Harris and Jennings Agner performed on the links for the golf team, while Charlie Kinlaw showed promise on the baseball squad.

Rope Marney kept the house in a state of philosophical turmoil for a whole semester and then turned thespian, stealing the show as Iago in the Little Theater production of "Othello." Bill Ray left during the year to enter the business world, and Glenn Austin, minus only one suit, breathed a sigh of relief. Biggest laugh of the year was provided by Foxy Boles, who contemplated court action after viewing his likeness as sketched by a visiting caricature artist. Jay Carter, who also served as head of the Inter-Fraternity Council, was president for the second semester.

The little group of Zeta Chis, now Sigma Chis, have been awed by the sudden appearance this year of their horn of plenty. After the affiliation with Sigma Chi in November, the acquisition and renovation of the old Gooch home (by amateurish but willing brothers) and the addition of a choice group of new aspirants, it's small wonder the old veterans of Zeta are deeply impressed.

The installation in November and the sudden shuffling of members together under one roof has caused a boiling confusion of social intercourse which isn't likely to simmer down until the novelty dulls.

"Lord" Finch, Consul, stirs the mess vigorously with his ebullient laughter and conversation. Roommate George Johnson would aid Bax in the gentle art, but his pursuit of the legal mistress curtails his activities. Speaking of activities, the mercuric Bob Groves, leading Sig candidate for glories on the cinder, is preparing for a pastoral life on the farm. C. V. Williams displays a unique scroll he received on Valentine's Day, and philosopher Bill Herring expounds on the evils of such a thing, while Don Bland "lends him his ear." Hugh Dover, "the flash," so named for the mass of campus activities in which he indulges, drops by the house for a game of chess. The booming voice that interrupts the game could be Col. Rice moaning over last semester's grades or Grady Friday bursting into an aria, but it's probably both of them ordering Ralph Bowen to fire up his convertible for a run to the Heights. Alex Kizer adds to the general uproar by bringing in his latest photographic explorations of hidden vistas, while the immovable Cole twins keep right on studying, oblivious to the surrounding pandemonium.

Things have been awfully quiet in the Sig Ep house this year, with the entire fraternity making a vigorous attack on the citadel of knowledge. There were some good times, though. Cabin parties and dances punctuated the passing weekends.

Leaders in the 21-man pledge class were Dick Rankin (now indicted for inciting a riot), Don Bower and Sonny White. As in years past, Sig Ep had its men of distinction: Phil Mason, only known local member of the Polar Bear Club, won renown with his aquatic feats in all the ponds of Wake and Durham counties. Clyde "Pineapple" Mitchell won a place in the hall of heroes with his one-man date bureau. Hoot Gibson endeared himself to all of the members with his businesslike demeanor. Snag White laid his claim to fame when he sacrificed his last tooth on the treacherous steps in front of the house. Charlie Parker had no difficulty in keeping his golf ball off those terrible fairways, and his knowledge of the flora and fauna surrounding the course is vast and unlimited.

"Oscar," the twenty-foot Deacon, chopped off enough wolf heads to win the Homecoming Day Decoration award. The fraternity chose Gray Roberts as second-semester president, and brothers Clyde Whittener and Luke Eller joined the ranks of the newlyweds during the year.

"At ease, troops!" As this command rang forth for the last time, Sigma Pi presidents Mark McLean and Alex Biggs paused to look back over an eventful year, which found members of the frat going in for everything from manuscripts to marriage.

Topping the fraternity's list of accomplishments was the acquisition of new furniture and the re-decoration of the chapter room, under the direction of Brother Robert Helm. A modernistic paint job was applied under the skillful hand of Pat "Raphael" Thompson, who was ably assisted by "Cletus" Milam and a few other willing hands.

This was the year that Elbert O'Connell finally got his "Masters" and Les Stewart his "Batchelors." The whole group nearly went nuts when Jack "Shadow" Bowers and O. G. Rhodes sang for their supper. Bob Howell laughed at Vic "Durance" Matney's caricature, while Bill Clarke took another dose of "salts."

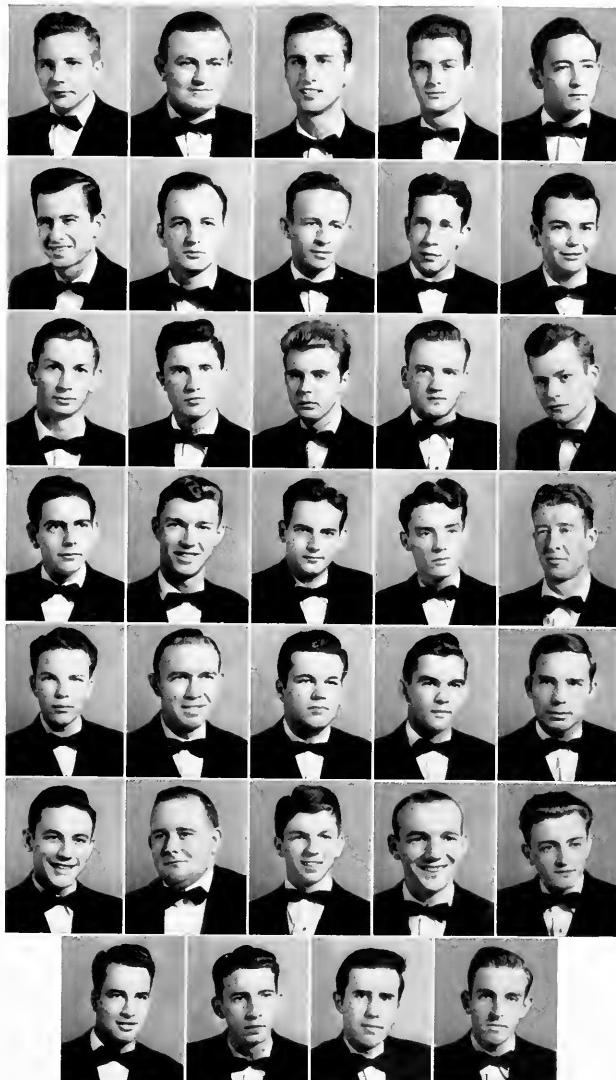

Joe Latham conducted his survey, and "Author" Gore turned out his latest novel. George Mallone kept having trouble with his trousers strap, as his key chain grew heavier and heavier. Ig Turnage, Riley Burgess and Bob Pate marvelled at George Green's ability to drive on an empty tank, but Jim Hester thought it was all rather "rediculous." Carl Parnell and John Muse pondered over the check book, while Orville Robinson devised new means of keeping them busy.

Paul Moyle carried his girl to Cuba, and Tom Hall went to Virginia with Dor. Leech Wyche claimed the distinction of being the first man to live in New Dorm. "Nut" Wilkinson had trouble making up his mind, but "Bone-crusher" Phillips never had a chance. And brothers Joe Latham and Leo Derrick planned on weddings during the summer.

"Chicken in the breadpan, pickin' up dough; swing your partner and let her go!" With these words, the Theta Chi social season for the year 1948-49 was off to a rip-roaring start. It all happened at the barn dance at Lake Mirl during Homecoming weekend, the first of a series of interesting fraternity activities.

Other highlights of the year include a trip to the Wake Forest-Clemson football game in a chartered bus, which had police escort to the stadium; the coronation of the "Dream Girl" by Brother Thad Eure at the annual ball; a Christmas party for the colored children of Wake Forest; a tea given during Religious Focus Week to acquaint visiting workers with the college faculty and the presidents of various campus organizations; and several parties with Duke brothers-to-be, climaxed by the installation of a new chapter at Duke.

Among the brothers who distinguished themselves during the year are Ralph Williams, who directed Ghosts and played in Othello; John Carrington, noted authority on Latin and bridge; Jim Staton and Charlie Casper, veterans of the grueling trek from Magnolia Inn; and Wendell Owen and Graham Thomas, the fraternity's silent partners.

Paul Walters, Tom Sneed and Gus White kept the road hot to Greensboro, while George Tunstall and Carlos Cooper bussed themselves with their cats, frogs and pipes. The "Joy Club" was organized by brothers Harris, Mauney, Fagan and Pulliam, to provide for Saturday night parties. Bob Allen, Bruce Pulliam and Kent Bennett attended the national convention in Boston. Bill Stovall had the mumps, but Eloise was there to comfort him. George Wilson, Fred Joyce and Don Hayes were "moneybags boys." And Jack Johnson, the man with the big car, was elected president for next year.

INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

JAY CARTER, President

The Inter-Fraternity Council, composed of two representatives from each of eleven member fraternities, met each Tuesday night to discuss and act on matters of concern to the Greek-letter organizations. Among the activities for which the Council made arrangements were rushing and pledging, Homecoming decoration and scholarship awards, and the four major dances of the year.

Fraternity rushing began immediately after registration and lasted till the morning of October 20, with each frat allowed an afternoon party and a smoker. A 48-hour silence period preceded pledging on the night of October 21.

The first Council-sponsored dance was the Homecoming Ball, held in the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium, with music by Jerry Wald. Tom Goode, from State College, played for the Christmas Dance at the Durham Armory. All men presented toys at the door for distribution at the Baptist Orphanage in Thomasville. The big Mid-Winters weekend included a Friday night semi-formal hop, a Saturday afternoon tea dance and a formal ball on Saturday night. Music for all three was furnished by Elliot Lawrence. Tom Goode played again for the Spring Dance, which, like Mid-Winters, was held in the Memorial Auditorium.

Fraternity Pledging

Almost before the ink was dry on their registration blanks, Wake Forest freshmen were caught up in a dizzy whirl of handshakes, confidential talks, parties and smokers, climaxed four weeks later by the extension of bids and the big moment when 150 of them became fraternity men.

The Magnolia Festival was made possible only through a lot of careful planning and hard work. The May Day pageant was created by the student members of the Women's Recreation Association, under the direction of Miss Marjorie Crisp and Mrs. Allan Knott.

The Music Department and the Little Theater also took part in the week-long festival, which included an operetta, concerts by the band, orchestra, glee club and A Cappella Choir, and a production of Shakespeare's Othello.

The Square and Compasses Club, an organization made up of students who are members of Masonic lodges, met every two weeks in the Phi Hall to discuss topics related to the practice of Masonry. Not a Masonic lodge, it was organized merely as a fellowship for Masons on the campus.

During the course of the year, Professor Edgar W. Timberlake presented to the club a series of discussions on the principles of Masonry. On April 23 a banquet was held at the college cafeteria. The main speaker was Dr. Hubert M. Poteat, faculty member and nationally prominent Mason.

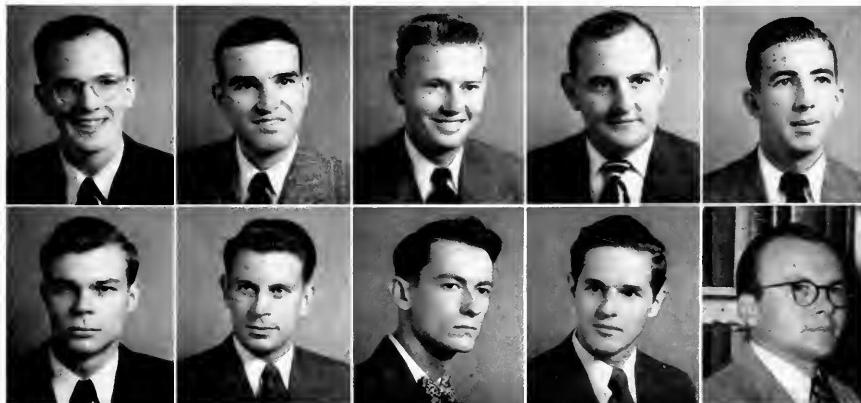

GATOR CLUB

The Gator Club was organized last October by several students from Florida, so that students from that state might become better acquainted with one another and with their state. The group held monthly supper meetings at Wooten's Hometel. Naturally, the menu always included genuine Florida oranges. Among the informal programs were a display of color slides taken in Florida and a dissertation on Florida's superiority to North Carolina. During the spring, the club held a Saturday afternoon picnic, complete with sandwiches, cold drinks and oranges. Mack Parrish and Jack Bracey served during the year as presidents of the organization.

Beta Tau, honorary Business Administration fraternity, was organized at Wake Forest on December 8, 1948. The group met on the first and third Wednesday nights of every month. Each meeting featured a program designed to increase understanding of economics and business principles.

At one meeting, Dr. Richard Powers, of the School of Business Administration, spoke on labor relations. At another, a panel of six students discussed the European Recovery Program. Under President Bernard McLeod, the fraternity pledged twenty-four students during the spring semester.

Party Planning

A great deal of careful planning lies back of every successful party. The amount of planning varies, of course, with the size and nature of the party, but in almost every case it involves securing permission and approval from the proper authorities and making arrangements for decorations, refreshments and entertainment.

Religious organizations, literary societies, fraternities and other groups often appoint special committees to take care of these details, but some groups have standing committees for this purpose. Among the most important of these permanent committees is the Social Standards Committee of the Women's Government Association, which draws up a complete calendar of co-ed social events.

-  FALL 278
-  WINTER 286
-  SPRING 292

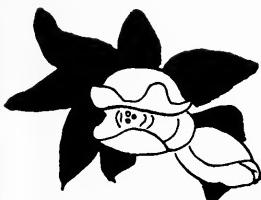

HIGHLIGHTS

Another year has passed at Wake Forest College. In most respects, it was not greatly unlike previous years. The faculty and student body were a little larger, the problems of overcrowding a little greater, the list of extra-curricular activities a little longer, and the process of living a little more complicated, but life was not really different from life at Wake Forest in years gone by. A chorus of blending sounds still echoed daily across the campus, creating a dynamic symphony of students at work and at play—the murmur of laughing voices, a blaring radio, shuffling footsteps, a couple of chattering typewriters, the strains of a Chopin waltz played haltingly by an aspiring young pianist, the rumble of a passing train, and perhaps the barking of a restless dog somewhere in the distance.

It was not a particularly spectacular year. As usual, fall brought with it brisk days, cool nights, and football. Eager freshmen still found college life new and exciting, and returning upperclassmen still felt an inward glow of pleasure as they renewed old friendships and resumed a life they had come to love. By November, students' thoughts had begun to turn to Christmas and final exams. The nip of winter was in the air.

But there was very little real winter. The weather remained unseasonably mild, and spring came early to the Wake Forest campus. With it came spring fever, the smell of magnolias and honeysuckle, and a winning baseball team. Students sat on sunny porches and flopped down in the soft grass up the hill from the arch, soaking themselves in the warm sunshine and dreaming of the not too distant summer vacation. Most of them would soon be leaving, at least for the summer months, but they would carry with them a love for Wake Forest and the memory of a happy year.

This fifth book of the 1949 HOWLER is a pictorial summary of the highlights of that year. The first section, which covers the fall months, tells the story of registration, freshman elections, Homecoming, the football victory over Duke, and the Sadie Hawkins Day Dance. It also gives a portrayal of a typical day in the life of a Wake Forest student. The next section describes two outstanding winter events—the presentation of The Messiah and the Dixie Bowl football game, and then shows a typical day in the life of a Wake Forest co-ed. In the last section, we drop back to 1948 to tell the story of the spring. The section includes accounts of the Magnolia Festival, student elections and graduation. It also gives details of these events as they took place in 1949, and pictures a typical day in the life of a married veteran. Finally, there are the minor highlights—a miscellany of events worthy of mention in this record.

Fall

REGISTRATION

This year's registration set something of a record. It was the largest registration and the most efficient—in the history of Wake Forest College. As Registrar Grady Patterson put it, "We were able to handle more people in less time than we ever had before. And yet we were able to give more time to each individual student." 1908 students were registered during appointed periods on September 15 and 16, and the job was completed in a record time of fourteen hours. A little simple arithmetic shows that students were registered at the amazing rate of better than two a minute.

This was a far cry from the hectic registration periods which marked the early years of postwar expansion. There were still lines, but none to compare with those of 1946 and 1947, which began forming in the wee hours of the morning and reached from Wait Hall to the Durham highway by the time the doors were opened at eight o'clock. Students still paid fees at Wait Hall, as in former years, but from there they went to the gymnasium to choose their courses, rather than to the library. This system, worked out in the summer of 1948, has proven to be quite satisfactory.

Registration begins with a line outside the Registrar's office.

The immovable "Skinny" Pearson discusses class schedule with Betty Fay Trotter.

Then Registrar's blanks are filled out and Bursar's fees paid.

In gym lobby, students make appointments for yearbook portraits.

Students arrange class schedules in gym, with help of advisers.

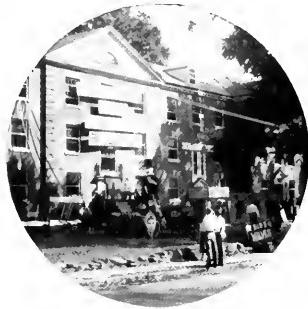

Special facilities are provided for absence draft registration.

Final step is purchasing of books from the College Bookstore.

School session officially opens with formal chapel convocation.

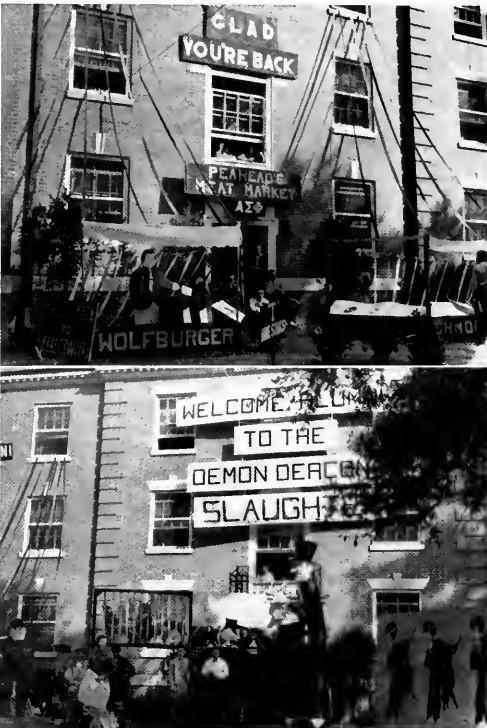

HOMECOMING DAY

Homecoming Day at Wake Forest ended on a note of triumph this year, for the first time since 1944. A 34-13 victory over N. C. State, the first Homecoming win in four years, provided the perfect climax to a day marked by color, pageantry and happy reunions.

Alumni, parents and guests began pouring into Wake Forest on Friday evening, October 29, and many of them attended parties given by the various social fraternities. That night, the fraternities erected their colorful lawn decorations. The Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity was later awarded a trophy for the most unique display.

More than 20,000 spectators witnessed the football game on Saturday. Between the halves, game sponsors were presented and introduced by Bill Bethune, after performances by the State and Wake Forest bands. The final event of the weekend was a fraternity dance in the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium, where a capacity crowd danced to the music of Jerry Wald and his orchestra.

Sponsors and escorts take the field at halftime.

Bottom right: Two posters employ art and poetry.

This year's freshman elections were the most colorful in Wake Forest history. Ordinarily, the election of freshman class officers, always held during the first week of November, attracts very little attention on the campus. The campaigning this year, however, was almost as vigorous as that which accompanies the traditionally colorful student body elections. Certainly, it overshadowed the national election as far as many students were concerned, despite the fact that national returns were coming in on November 3, the day of balloting.

It was evident from the start that the election would be a heated one. No less than thirty-three candidates were nominated for the four class offices at a meeting held on October 26. By the end of the week, the campus was covered with posters urging the election of various candidates. As election day drew near, other lures were offered to prospective voters by ingenious young politicians. As freshmen approached the polls on the big day, they were barraged with handbills, candy kisses, cigarettes, chewing gum and specially recorded campaign songs. One ambitious candidate even provided comfortable chairs for the voters, and a radio to keep them posted on the latest national returns.

Despite this intensive campaigning, the election failed to produce a single winner, and a four-way run-off election was held on November 10.

DUKE VICTORY

Coach Walker keeps solitary vigil as Duke threatens to score

Those who witnessed the football battle between Duke and Wake Forest last November will not soon forget the drama of that game. It has been widely acclaimed as the best football contest played in this state during 1948. Many students consider it the most thrilling event of the school year.

Coach "Peahen" Walker described the game as one of the greatest thrills of his coaching career. It was the second Deacon victory over Duke in 21 years, and Walker's first triumph over Wallace Wade. Even Mr. Patterson (above) was among the jubilant fans who hastened to ring the victory bell.

These sideline scenes reflect tense drama of game. Only in bottom picture, taken just after Deacon score, are there signs of gaiety.

Bands from Duke, Wake Forest and high schools throughout state salute Deacons between halves. (Turn page upside down to read salute.)

Chaperones admire victims' vegetable corsages.

SADIE HAWKINS DAY DANCE

These students came to dance dressed as Marryin' Sam and Mammy and Pappy Yokum.

Here is scene from dance, which was held in college gymnasium.

Dancers obey caller's shout of "Swing your opposite partner!"

Jim Getzen brushes teeth before dressing. Sideburns are for frat party.

Life at Wake Forest during the past school year was made up of much more than a series of colorful highlights. It derived its fullest meaning nor from a few outstanding events but from many everyday trivialities so familiar that they went almost unnoticed by the students.

Naturally, no two students followed exactly the same daily routine, but the general pattern was pretty much the same for all. Here we obtain a pretty accurate picture of student life at Wake Forest by following Jim Getzen through a typical day.

More than a hundred performers took part in Wake Forest's tenth annual Christmas vespers service, which featured George Frederick Handel's Messiah. Because of limited seating space in the church auditorium, two performances were given, one on December 9 and one on December 12.

The service was preceded on both nights by a thirty-minute program of Christmas carols, played on the Donald L. Pfahl Memorial Chimes. In addition, an eight-piece brass ensemble concealed in the church auditorium played a fifteen-minute prelude of carols just before each performance.

The service was presented by the Glee Club, the Little Symphony Orchestra and five soloists, under the direction of Professor Thane McDonald, head of the college music department.

Professor McDonald also acted as organist, and Mr. Claude Cook accompanied the choruses on the piano, as well as directing the orchestra in its portions of the program.

One feature of the performance which greatly enhanced its effectiveness was the placement of the Glee Club in the balcony of the auditorium, Chosen for their mighty display of offensive power, the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest met Baylor University of Texas on January 1 in the Dixie Bowl, at Birmingham, Alabama. The game ended in a 20-7 victory for Baylor, although Wake Forest came out on the long end of every department of the statistics. The Deacs just got started too late. They pushed Baylor all over the field during the last half, but before intermission they were hardly in the ball game.

The college band accompanied the team to Birmingham and put on a very impressive show at halftime. Pre-game ceremonies included the introduction of the Dixie Bowl Queen and of Andy Stewart, young polio patient from Warm Springs, Georgia, who was flown to the game in a helicopter.

A Glimpse at a Wake Forest

As we follow Marilyn Costello through a typical day at Wake Forest, we see reflected in her activities the daily life of the average Wake Forest co-ed. It is a happy life, glowing with a youthful vivacity which makes every experience an adventure. And it is a busy life, crowded with activities which range from eight o'clock classes to eight o'clock dates. Some of these activities are shown on these two pages, which offer a glimpse of the feminine side of student life at Wake Forest College.

FESTIVAL

The Magnolia Festival, a week-long series of events in the fields of music, dancing, art and drama, was instituted at Wake Forest in the spring of 1948. The festival is based on an idea which developed during a conversation between Miss Lois Johnson, Dean of Women, and Miss Marjorie Crisp, Director of Women's Physical Education, who had suggested the presentation of a May Day Program by Wake Forest co-eds.

Since the Little Theater and the various musical organizations on the campus customarily presented programs during the spring, these groups were invited to schedule their programs for the week following May Day. Plans were also made to have the art gallery open during the week.

An outstanding success for two years, the festival has already become a tradition at Wake Forest College.

Costumed cast of H. M. S. Pinafore tours campus heralding operetta.

Eu Society chorus, campus sing winter, rehearses for contest.

The 1948 A Cappella Choir lines up in front of chapel shortly before giving Sunday afternoon concert on chapel steps during festival week.

STUDENT ELECTIONS

Bewildering array of signs confronts students approaching polls on election day. John Marthas, wearing dress suit, was victorious presidential candidate in 1948 elections.

High pressure electioneering is nothing new to Wake Forest students. The college has been known for years as an excellent place to obtain a thorough grounding in practical politics. But the student elections held during the past two years have produced campaigns planned with political finesse seldom equaled even at Wake Forest. Certainly, they have been the most colorful campaigns conducted here in over a decade.

Most imaginative of the contending groups in 1948 was IDGAD (I Don't Give A Darn), a radical third party which poked fun at the entire structure of Wake Forest politics. The unorthodox IDGAD campaign featured such stunts as the unfurling of the huge banner shown below (on the right) just at the climax of a big rally held in the chapel by the powerful Progressive Fraternity Party.

This year's campaigning, more conventional but more elaborate, produced a record total of 1,508 votes.

Clever campaign of radical IDGAD party attracted quite a number of votes.

GRADUATION EXERCISES

Pictures taken during 1948 graduation exercises show Dr. Kitchin speaking briefly to seniors, auditorium crowded with people, conferring of degrees, and the recessional.

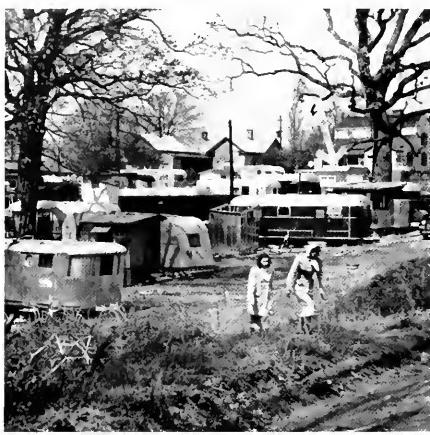

Graduation exercises were held at Wake Forest for 251 students on May 30 and 31, 1948. The uncompleted chapel was filled to overflowing for the ceremonies, which featured a baccalaureate sermon by Dr. O. T. Binkley, of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, and an address by Dr. K. S. Latourette, of Yale University.

Despite hurried attempts at completion, the chapel interior was still in the final stages of construction at the time of this year's commencement, which was held on May 29 and 30.

The 1949 graduating class of 390 students was the largest in the history of the college. Extra seats had to be placed in the auditorium to accommodate the hundreds of relatives and guests who attended the final exercises. The baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Dr. E. H. Pruden, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Washington, D. C., and the commencement address was given by Robert Lee Hubbard, world-famous attorney.

Dr. Kitchin confers honorary degree as Dr. Potcat arranges candidate's hood.

Arrow points to Bob's home in trailer village just north of campus.

Bob Bryant, a second year law student, briefs cases in typing room of law library.

He cooks supper before his wife Jerry gets home from job in Durham.

Family, except for 3-year-old Bobby, gets together again at supper.

As we follow Bob Bryant through a typical day, we find a pattern of life quite different from that of the ordinary college student. For Bob is a married man with a family—one of the hundreds of veterans who have created temporary homes at Wake Forest while they complete educations interrupted by the war. Living in trailer camps and reconverted army barracks, they have brought a new kind of student life to the Wake Forest campus.

At two o'clock he picks up daughter Sandra at grammar school.

On the way home, he stops at Hollowell's to buy groceries for the family.

A Glimpse at a Married Veteran's Daily Life

After supper, Sandra sings while her mother accompanies her on the piano.

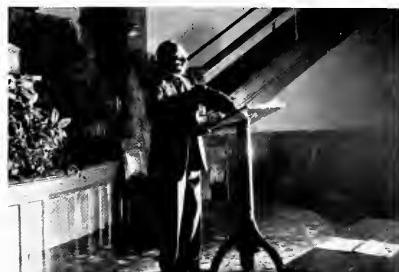

Bryants end day with a few rubbers of bridge after tucking Sandra in bed.

MINOR HIGHLIGHTS

Wake Forest band, participating in mass parade honoring visit of President Truman to Raleigh on October 19, passes reviewing stand and salutes President Truman (third from left, wearing black suit).

Dr. H. B. Jones seems the very personification of Old Scrooge at this point in his rendition of Dickens' "A Christmas Carol." Now a traditional event, the reading was given on December 16.

Bill George, Wake Forest's one-man wrestling team, took the heavyweight championship for the second straight year at the conference tournament held on March 4 and 5 in Lexington, Va.

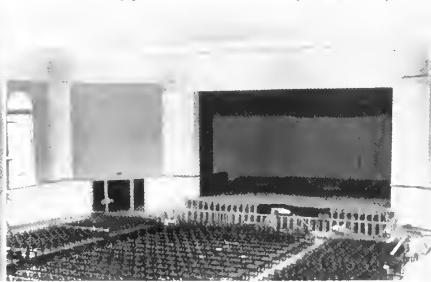

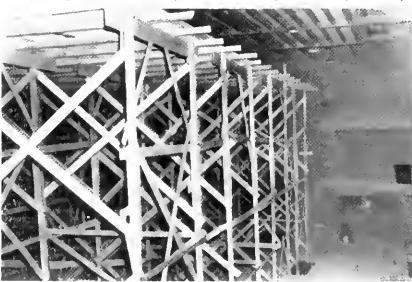

Bill McIlwain and Walt Friedenberg relax after publication on March 21 of their book, Legends of Baptist Hollow, which has sold over 1,000 copies and has entered a second printing.

Pete Caddle, presidential candidate of the Progressive Fraternity Party, and Red O'Quinn, candidate of the Student Political Union, shake hands after the student elections held on April 27. Caddle defeated O'Quinn, 799 to 709, in a very close race.

The long delayed work on the interior of the chapel finally got under way shortly after January 1, beginning with the construction of the huge scaffolding shown in the left hand picture below. Work included construction of a ceiling, plastering of the walls, finishing of the entrance lobby and galleries, and completion of the stage. The right hand picture was taken during graduation week, as the chapel neared completion.

Will we...

...keep our place in the world?

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA—first among nations in national income! First in production of wheat, corn, cotton, petroleum, coal, and iron! First in communications/in motor vehicles per capita—first in many essentials to good living and prosperity.

And directly related to that position of leadership is our standard of education—for it has been shown that a country's wealth and welfare rise along with its educational standards. And countries rich in natural resources can be poor and backward without the benefits of education.

Yes, the United States is a leader in the field of education too—but for how long? Appalling conditions prevail today in many of our schools. Many of our most brilliant teachers are working against odds—crowded classrooms, shortages of equipment and textbooks, long hours. . . . Thousands have left the profession for other work.

You, and every United States citizen, will suffer from this situation, because it cannot help affecting our national prosperity before long.

WHAT TO DO?

Today—make it your business to take these two steps: 1. Check up on educational conditions in your local schools; 2. Back up and work with organizations seeking to improve teachers' working and living conditions. For only by keeping our educational standards high can we hold our place in the world—and assure a prosperous future for our children.
